

KING'S FRIEND GETS TREATS

BRITISH FORTIFY
HONGKONG; FEAR
NAZI-JAP PACTSee Empire Menaced
by Alliance.BY DAVID DARRAH.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The British response to the new German-Japanese alliance, which is held here to mask the territorial expansionist ambitions of the two powers behind an anti-communist crusade, will be an immediate decision to speed up the reorganization of Hongkong.

Displeasure at the German-Japanese agreement was discernible generally today in official circles and the press. The general opinion seems to be that the pact is more menacing to the British empire and its interests—especially if Italy joins in it later—than for Soviet Russia, against whom it is ostensibly aimed.

See Danger to Britain.

Special displeasure is expressed in the British capital in the fact that Joachim von Ribbentrop, German ambassador to London, who is supposed to be adept at understanding the British viewpoint, should have been chosen to sign it.

The theory that the Berlin pact is more dangerous to the British empire than to the Soviet giant sprawled across two continents comes from the belief that the Russian immensity in itself is protection. The Japanese, it is believed, would have difficulty in attacking Russia in the orient because of the excellent Red air force, Germany in order to attack Russia in the west would have to cross Czechoslovakia and Poland.

But colonial powers, like Britain, the Netherlands, and France, have territorial encroachments which could be easily encroached on, it is feared in London. The Japanese-German accord further puts new pressure on Singapore, and makes the divisional demands on the British fleet in the far east come at the same time as it is needed in the Baltic.

Seek U. S. Cooperation.

For this reason Hongkong will be reorganized immediately. The more assiduous courting of American cooperation in the Pacific probably will accompany this step. The British occupation of Hongkong is in the form of a lease expiring in 1997.

The London Times expresses the belief the first effects of the Japanese-German alliance will be greater liberty of maneuver for the Japanese fighting services in the far east, and for Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler in Europe, with British interests likely to suffer from the former and Czechoslovakia from the latter. The German campaign against Czechoslovakia is likely to be driven forward.

Push Pact with Italy.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

TOKIO, Nov. 26.—It is understood on reliable authority that an Italian-Japanese alliance against communism, similar to the pact with Germany, will be signed shortly. Yotaro Sugimura, ambassador to Rome, who has been conducting negotiations in the Italian capital, reported favorably to the Japanese foreign minister Hachiro Arita is sending instructions to expedite the matter.

The Tokyo Asahi understands that Italian recognition of Manchukuo and Japanese recognition of Italy's Ethiopian empire will be announced simultaneously.

The signing of the Japanese-German agreement and the likelihood of a similar pact with Italy is regarded in Tokyo as indicative of a desire of the government to break away from the policy of international isolation.

Germany's New Slogan.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Dr. Paul Josef Goebbels, minister of propaganda, at Ludwigsplatz last night proclaimed a new slogan, "Europe Awake!" as successor to the cry, "Germany Awake!"

Consequently Berlin's Nazi rulers are eagerly waiting for other nations to join the German-Japanese pact against communism.

It is still hoped Italy will announce adherence to the agreement despite Premier Mussolini's refusal on the plea that he is too busy occupied with problems concerning the Danube basin. A special invitation may be extended to Great Britain. However, reports from London indicate England has little desire to divide the world into two blocs, so the decision as to whether such an invitation will be issued will be left to Joachim von Ribbentrop, ambassador to London.

NATION'S FARM
RICHES ARRIVING FOR STOCK SHOWGreat Spectacle Will Open Tomorrow.

Symbols of the rich resources of North America go on parade tomorrow in Chicago, agricultural capital of the continent. A hundred thousand visitors and nearly half a million Chicagoans will see the great show.

Page 1.

It is the thirty-seventh annual International Live Stock exposition, opening at 7 a. m. in the International amphitheater, 43d and Halsted streets.

Page 1.

On display will be:

Five million dollars' worth of animals, the aristocracy of smaller shows—a total of 14,533 cattle, horses, sheep and hogs.

Page 1.

Five thousand samples of grain and hay, brought to the exposition by the leading farmers of the land.

Page 1.

Blue ribbon horses from many states, competing in nightly demonstrations which have provided some of the greatest thrills of past shows.

Page 1.

More Arrivals Today.

Page 1.

More than half of the animals entered in the show had arrived at the amphitheater last night. Their owners and handlers were grooming them with meticulous care for the time when they will appear before the exposition judges.

Page 1.

Several trainloads of animals will arrive late today from Toronto, Ont., bringing the prize winners of the Toronto exposition, a great Canadian event, which closed Wednesday night.

Page 1.

Exhibitors from forty-one states and five Canadian provinces have entered the Chicago show. They include Farmer David Windsor of High River, Alberta, Canada, better known as King Edward VIII, who won a championship last year in the two-year old bull class.

Page 1.

B. H. Heide, manager of the show, announced yesterday that all exhibits would be ready for the inspection of early visitors tomorrow morning.

Page 1.

The exposition will be open each day from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m., closing on Saturday, Dec. 5.

Page 1.

Judging to Start Today.

Page 1.

Mayor Kelly has designated tomorrow as Chicago day, and in a proclamation has directed the attention of all citizens to the importance of the exposition to the city and its value to visitors in both education and entertainment.

Page 1.

One of the opening day will be the collegiate live stock judging contest, in which teams are entered from twenty-seven colleges and universities.

Page 1.

Today farm boys and girls from twenty-one states will be the actors in a show preliminary to the official opening of the exposition. They will match their skill in picking the winners from groups of fat cattle, hogs, and sheep in a contest sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Page 1.

4-H Club Spurs Work.

Page 1.

The boys and girls are members of 4-H clubs in their home communities. The name 4-H means heart, hand, head, and health—the four aims of the clubs, which promote contests among their members in many farm activities.

Page 1.

In the 4-H club judging event today will be Cleo Zoder of Wellman, Ia., the youngster who won the grand championship award last year with his Angus calf, Pat's Blue Ribbon.

Page 1.

This is Cleo's last year for 4-H club competition, as he has now reached the age limit of 20 years for club members.

Page 1.

Live stock entries in last year's exposition totaled 12,680 animals. On display this year will be 2,000 more than that number, establishing a new record. The total value of the exhibits will be nearly triple that of the entries in the first show thirty-six years ago.

Page 1.

Noted Experts Are Judges.

Page 1.

Leading live stock authorities of the United States, Canada, and Europe will be called upon to determine the prize winners at the exposition this year.

Page 1.

Walter Bligard of Dalbeattie, Scotland, will again judge the fat cattle classes and pick the grand champion steer, the most coveted single award of the show.

Page 1.

The hay and grain competition was added to the live stock exposition in 1919, and since then has been an important feature of the show.

Page 1.

The pick of the saddle, harness, and draft horses from fourteen states will be seen in the nightly horse shows.

Page 1.

The first show tomorrow night will be limited to exhibitors from Chicago and suburbs. (For details of the horse show see sports section.)

Rio to Salute
Roosevelt as a Hero TodayBY WALTER TROHAN.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 26.—All Rio tonight was in the grip of excitement awaiting the arrival of President Roosevelt tomorrow for a twelve-hour pause in the most beautiful city of the Americas.

Page 1.

On the journey to the Buenos Aires Inter-American peace conference, the first official halt on a good will trip will give Mr. Roosevelt all the honors of a visiting ruler.

Page 1.

Most of the two million inhabitants are expected to throng the line of march through tree avenues.

Page 1.

Charm Captures Brazilians.

Page 1.

Mr. Roosevelt is a hero here. His magnetic charm, as revealed by press reports and demonstrated by newsreels, has captured Brazilian hearts.

Page 1.

Last night a movie audience leaped to its feet as a newsreel showed him campaigning. The cheering audience stopped the show for five minutes.

Page 1.

The President has crowded the skinny news columns of papers and all conversation. His picture in a local rotogravure section has been hung in windows. Twined American and Brazilian flags have been strung above the procession route. Reviewing stands and ramps have been erected.

Page 1.

The U. S. S. Indianapolis, with Mr. Roosevelt aboard, will enter the harbor at 6 a. m. [Chicago time]. Whistles of vessels in the mountain fringed harbor will signal his entrance. A bedlam is expected as the cruiser makes her way from the mouth of the harbor past the granite cone of Sugar Loaf mountain, and the jagged peak of Corcovado, the hunchback mountain.

Page 1.

Vargas to Greet Roosevelt.

Page 1.

The Indianapolis will glide along the side of the Praca Maua plaza, before the Touring club, where President Getulio Vargas of Brazil will await him.

Page 1.

Units of the army, navy, and marine corps will be drawn up along the Praca. Bands will play and guns boom a salute as Mr. Roosevelt comes down a ramp on the arm of his son, James.

Page 1.

After a brief welcome by Ambassador Hugh Gibson of the United States and his staff, the welcoming committee of leading Brazilians will shake the President's hand, protocol ruling against wholesale kissing—the customary greeting of warm Latin friends.

Page 1.

More salutes will be fired ashore along the route that Mr. Roosevelt will motor to the home of Arnaldo Guinle, Brazil's wealthiest citizen. The residence overlooks the famed Copacabana beach.

Page 1.

Will Address Parliament.

Page 1.

From the country's most palatial home, Mr. Roosevelt will attend a luncheon at the home of the textile king, Fontes, at suburban Tijuca. From Tijuca the President will proceed to the Brazilian house of representatives to address a joint session of the chamber of deputies, senate, and Supreme court.

Page 1.

In the evening there will be a banquet for Mr. Roosevelt at Ita Maraty palace. Almost 12 hours to the minute from the arrival, the Indianapolis will point out of the harbor toward Buenos Aires for the opening of the peace conference Dec. 1.

MASQUERADE ENDS;
'GIRL,' 6, DOFFS CURLS,
DRESSES; NOW A BOY

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 26.—(P)—Known during his brief life so far as Dolly Clayton, Charles Richard Clayton doffed dresses, was shorn of long curls, and doffed his clothing today as police investigated a Syracuse WPA worker and his family.

Page 1.

Detective Cornelius Cook, who went to the Clayton home today, learned that the boy, who appears to be about 6, had been dressed and treated like a girl all his life and did not know he was a boy.

Page 1.

The masquerade was uncovered through the philanthropy of Edward D. Vinal, a merchant, who took the shivering child downtown and asked two women clerks of a department store to select a warm outfit. The clerks discovered the child was a boy.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Peoria citizens were startled this morning—early this morning—by an announcement by Federal Game Warden John Martin that he had arrested Justice Warren H. Orr of the Illinois Supreme court as a violator of game laws.

The warden announced further, with some satisfaction, that he had arrested, or was about to arrest, [there seemed some question about that] divers other persons prominent in Illinois officialdom and sporting circles. These presumably all were members of the Crane Lake preserve and the Astoria Gun club. The president of the Crane Lake club is C. F. Thompson, state director of conservation.

ish government and Gen. Francisco Franco, the insurgent dictator-designate.

For the handful of remaining Americans it was a sad Thanksgiving. This morning they saw 76 of their compatriots leave the United States embassy with American diplomatic officials amid the boom of cannon and crackle of machine guns, bound for Valencia.

Siege 3 Weeks Old.

With a battle raging a little more than a mile from the center of the city, competent observers could envisage no end to the fascist siege, three weeks old today.

The main group of fifty Americans, including four children, left at dawn in a cavalcade of buses and private cars, taking with them a crated Thanksgiving dinner of sliced ham, Spanish omelets, bread and oranges.

[The Americans reached Valencia late last night.]

Wendell Leaves.

Eric C. Wendell, American chargé d'affaires, accompanied the second group, made up of foreign members of the National Telephone company staff who had been living under bombardment in the ornate American-owned telephone building. Col. Sothenes Behn, New York financier and international communications executive, was in the party.

Wendell is setting up an embassy at Valencia. The Americans who are leaving Spain will depart on the United States cruiser Raleigh for France. The Madrid embassy was closed officially.

In the University City battlefield in northwestern Madrid every available member of two international brigades fought to save off a new fascist assault. Four rebel planes bombed the model prison, machine-gunned defense barricades and blasted houses.

Government lines stretched from the south of the university campus west to the model prison and across the west park to a point near the Frenchman's bridge over the river Manzanares.

Flee Barcelona, Americans Told.

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Americans were advised today to leave Barcelona, against which Spanish fascists have declared a blockade in an effort to prevent arm shipments to Madrid.

The U. S. S. Raleigh would call here tomorrow, United States Consul General Mahlon Perkins said, and he suggested the American colony use it for evacuation. The consulate might be closed, he warned, and further calls by American naval vessels are uncertain.

NAME SAFETY ZONE

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The admiralty announced tonight it had been informed by the commander of the British third cruiser squadron, now at Palma, Mallorca, that a safety zone for foreign ships has been established at Barcelona.

The message said: "The military governor of Mallorca (held by rebels) has informed me the safety zone fixed by the naval staff for foreign and neutral ships in the port of Barcelona will be the area between land and the open sea south of parallel 41 degrees 20 minutes 18 seconds north."

French and Italian ships in Palma harbor have been given similar reports. The area mentioned lies south of a line roughly east to west three-quarters of a mile south of the Barcelona breakwater light.

More British warships, the cruiser Galatea, and the third destroyer squadron left the base at Malta for Spanish waters today, indicating the admiralty is taking no chances of any quick moves by partisans of Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish insurgent leader, although it was explained again that these are only routine and previously scheduled relief movements.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Following the seizure by Spanish government forces of the German consulate at Cartagena (charging it was disseminating fascist propaganda), German warships were ordered today to proceed to Cartagena to evacuate the consular staff and documents.

2 Given 6 Month Terms

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Delbert Gilliland, 35, and Albert Sullivan, 32, both of Bloomington were sentenced today to serve six months on the Vandalla penal farm. They were arrested in a Big Four box car yesterday while in a drunken stupor.

Gilliland's two children, a son, 5, and a daughter, 3, thinly clad, who were also in the box car, will be turned over to the juvenile probation officer of McLean county.

WALLY RECEIVES BOMB THREATS; POLICE ON GUARD

Special Officer Examines Mail of King's Friend.

which contrasted Edward's interest in the poverty-stricken South Wales mining area on his visit last week with "the consecrated and long procedure" of cabinet ministers in dealing with the unemployment problem.

The Daily Mail said: "The king has called for action. King Edward's latest contribution to democratic government has been to give it a human aspect and a sharp, sudden access of drive. How often do ministers go forth to see for himself and measure a problem by independent judgment? Surely those who recently confessed they dared not tell the people the truth will realize the gulf between their conduct and the king's method in Wales."

Hardly was the ink dry on the Daily Mail's editorial when the London Times boomed forth with a warning that such kind of comment is constitutionally dangerous and that "to write that way is to strike at the very root of the monarchy." The Times characterizes the Mail's suggestion as mischievous and likely to drive a wedge between the monarch and his ministers.

"Dangerous Proceeding."

"To contrast the king's personal concern in the welfare of his people with the administration of his advisers is a constitutionally dangerous proceeding threatening to involve the throne in politics," the Times said.

The next day the Daily Telegraph, equally indignant, exploded another depth charge with the following declaration:

"Grave damage both for the cause of special areas and the position of the monarchy will be done if the endeavor is continued in certain quarters to represent the king's visit to South Wales as a rebuke to ministerial policy."

People close to Buckingham palace were struck by the appearance and tones of the Times' and the Telegraph's broadsheets, which were described today as a barometer of the lengths to which the so-called "old guard" courtiers will go in an intransigent last ditch fight.

Imply Throne Intrigue.

Now there are implications of intrigue over the throne—the cabinet embroilment is carried to a further climax with the suggestion that one of King Edward's women friends inspired the article in the Daily Mail which aroused the Times' and the Telegraph's wrath.

According to the Week, out today, outcries of the old guard known as the "gossipy brigade" are busy spreading the inevitable story that this woman friend was seen lunching at the Savoy hotel with one of the owners of the newspaper in question (the Daily Mail) before the article appeared.

Air More Thundery.

The atmosphere of the whole controversy has become definitely more thundery over the week-end, according to the Week.

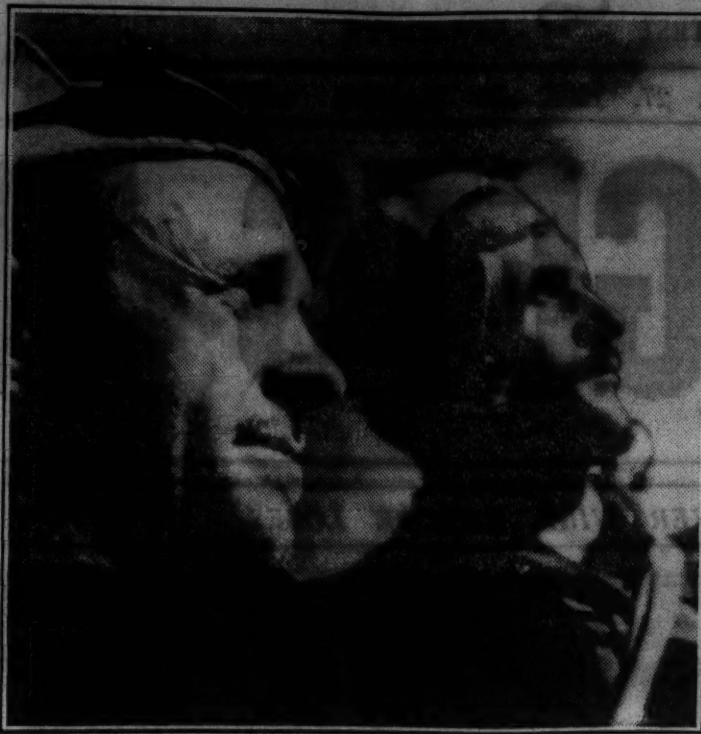

"Both the Times and the Telegraph in fervent defense of the cabinet went as far as to speak of a threat to the monarchy itself. Both implied such a threat would arise if ever a difference between it and the king comes to light."

"Even special circumstances of the moment and certain other more intimate matters in the unusual behavior of the two newspapers can only be a move in a campaign which has objectives far beyond the immediate matter under discussion. It is the first occasion on which muttered and whispered threats of the old guard as to what it is prepared to do in certain eventualities has begun to reach the printed page."

BRITISH WRITERS JOIN IN FIGHT ON HARSH LIBEL LAW

Ask Support of New Reform Bill.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Eminent British writers have joined in the fight for amendment of the British libel law, which Rebecca West, noted novelist, declares may regard as "like the Irish sweepstakes"—people bring action in the hope they may be able to get something.

A joint meeting held last night by the International Association of Writers and the National Council for Civil Liberties was addressed by Miss West, Prof. J. B. S. Haldane and other writers.

Ask Support of Reform.

All asked support for the reform bill now before parliament to end the present libel law, under which heavy damages often are awarded in cases where an American court at the most would give a nominal award.

Miss West said it was essential that people know they must not spread defamatory statements, but that the present idea was to bring action whenever possible—and the English law requires slight grounds—in the hope of getting something for nothing.

Backs Freedom of Discussion.

Prof. Haldane remarked that the truth was a "fairly tough thing," and if there was freedom of discussion it was bound to come out.

The bill now before parliament provides that a libel case is invalid without proof of damage unless the alleged libel accuses a woman of adultery or unchastity or accuses a person of an offense corporally punishable or of incompetence in business or profession.

E. H. Hale, representing the Federation of Master Printers, told the meeting that the law is especially hard on printers, since it is difficult for them to know whether a publication contains libelous material, though they are liable for it if it is printed.

U. S. SHY MILLION BABIES! BLAME MARRIAGE SLUMP

U. of C. Experts Say Real Reason Is Depression.

American marriages and divorces which declined along with the markets during the years of the depression, have rallied strongly, according to a survey made public yesterday by Samuel Stouffer, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, and Lyle M. Spencer, fellow in sociology. From 1932, when marriages and divorces were at their lowest, the figures rose sharply with the return of better times until 1935, which the survey shows was the "marrying and divorcing" year in American history.

Despite its recovery, however, the marriage market has not made up the deficit of nearly 750,000 weddings that accumulated during the early years of the depression. As a result of this deficit, Stouffer and Spencer estimate, more than 1 million potential American children went unborn.

Marriage Market Fluctuates.

"When business is good, marriage and divorce rates go up; when business is bad, they go down," says the report. "The marriage rate for 1932 was the lowest in the history of the country since records were established in 1887. In 1932 there were 981,903 marriages in the United States, or 7.86 per 1,000 of population. This contrasts with the 1929 figure of 1,292,859, or 10.14 per 1,000. The highest percentage recorded was in the post-war year of 1920, when the rate was 11.96 per 1,000. And in 1935, the highest total of marriages in American history—an estimated 1,327,000—took place."

The tide turned in late 1932, but there is a probability that there will be an oversupply of bachelors and old maids for some time to come, the reports add.

How Divorces Reacted.

Basing the figures for a normal divorce rate on divorces granted from 1919 to 1929, Prof. Stouffer and Spencer estimate that because of sub-

CROWN PRINCESS OF ITALY AWAITS STORK; NATION HOPES FOR BOY

ROME, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Crown Princess Marie José is to present Italy with a new member of the house of Savoy, perhaps an heir to kingdom and empire, an official announcement said today. The announcement was made after court physicians decided the princess had passed successfully the fifth month of expectancy.

Should the child prove to be a boy, Italian hopes of long standing will have been answered. At present there is no direct male descendant of the heir apparent, Crown Prince Humbert. Little Princess Maria Pia, now in her third year and first child of the royal couple, under Salic law does not qualify as heir to the throne.

Prince Humbert and Princess Marie, daughter of the late King Albert of the Belgians, were married on Jan. 8, 1930. The prince is 32, his wife 30.

normal rate during the depression there is still a "deficit" of 171,000 divorces.

From unpublished data supplied by the census bureau from its 1930 figures Prof. Stouffer computes for the first time the percentage married according to their age. The figures are:

Age	Urban males	Urban females	Rural males	Rural females
16-19	4.9	10.2	2.2	15.5
20-24	23.8	47.1	8.2	28.2
25-29	59.3	70.9	64.5	80.4
30-34	74.9	78.8	78	80.6
35-39	80.1	79.2	82.5	87.5
40-44	81.6	77.4	89.9	86.0

Prof. Stouffer and Spencer based their computations on data gathered from state and county authorities in addition to that supplied by the census bureau.

FARLEY ASSERTS U. S. WILL HELP 'WHOLE WORLD'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 26.—James A. Farley, United States postmaster general, guest of honor at the Pilgrims society luncheon here today, promised that the Roosevelt administration is going to "accomplish a great deal in restoring prosperity" not only for the United States, but for the whole world.

Sir John Simon, home secretary, one of four British cabinet ministers present, followed up with the suggestion of closer Anglo-American cooperation, also with a view to benefiting the whole world.

"It is an expression of the real sentiments of the British people," Simon said, "when we declare that the fortunes of the United States give this country special interest and satisfaction because there is a bond that binds these two great countries, our ancient state and your immense republic, which more than any other single influence has served to promote peace and prosperity in the world."

EXAMINE GALVIN ASSETS TODAY IN HUNT FOR CLEWS

Open Safe Deposit Boxes in Murder Case.

Authorities this morning will examine the contents of two safety deposit boxes owned by Michael J. Galvin, slain labor leader, in a search for clues to his murder. Galvin was killed by a shotgun blast in an automobile Monday night in front of 553 Madison street while walking from his office at 809 West Madison street to the North Western station.

The deposit boxes are in the vaults of the First National bank and the Mid-City National bank. Present at the opening will be representatives of the state's attorney's office, federal revenue agents, and attorneys representing three women who have asserted they were still married to Galvin at the time of his death.

Never Divorced No. 1 Claim. Mrs. Helen Galvin, 12039 Princeton avenue, his first wife, has announced through her attorney, Seymour Frank, that she and Galvin had not been divorced as far as she knew. She said they separated in 1921. Her daughter, Mrs. Helen Regan, has been appointed administratrix of the estate.

The two other claimants to the estate are Galvin's second wife, Mrs. Margaret Galvin, 4021 Clarendon avenue, who says she and Galvin were married in 1921, separating three years ago, and Mrs. Elizabeth E. Galvin, 24 years old, who was married to the labor leader Sept. 1, 1933, and had been living with him in their apartment at 1229 Sherwin avenue.

A meeting has been called by the Chicago Truck Drivers and Chauffeurs' union, local 705, for Tuesday evening in their headquarters at 364 Madison street to elect a successor to Galvin, who was secretary-treasurer of that group. This local was the strongest of the 23 unions that at one time were members of the Chicago Teamsters Joint council, dominated by Galvin.

Motive for Slaying Seen. All but three of the unions, including the truck drivers, have gone over to the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, which has headquarters in Indianapolis and is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. Investigators believe Galvin was killed because of his steadfast opposition to the truck drivers becoming aligned with the A. F. of L. group.

An effort will be made at the meeting Tuesday, now that Galvin is no longer a factor, to have the union join the A. F. of L.

Funeral services for Galvin will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. in St. Jerome church, Lunt avenue and Paulina street, after removal from the chapel at 1946 Ogden avenue. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

One Pound Baby Girl Born;

Has 'Fair Chance' to Live

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—A baby girl, which the attending physician said weighed only about a pound, was born tonight at a hospital here to Mrs. Milton Payne. The baby was placed under an oxygen tent. Crying lustily, it was given a "fair chance" to survive.

Slashed Wrist Called Accidental

Mrs. Ian Keith, the former Mrs. Hildegard Smits of Chicago, who told conflicting stories about mishap which befell husband in Hollywood home.

STORIES DIFFER ON IAN KEITH'S SLASHED WRIST

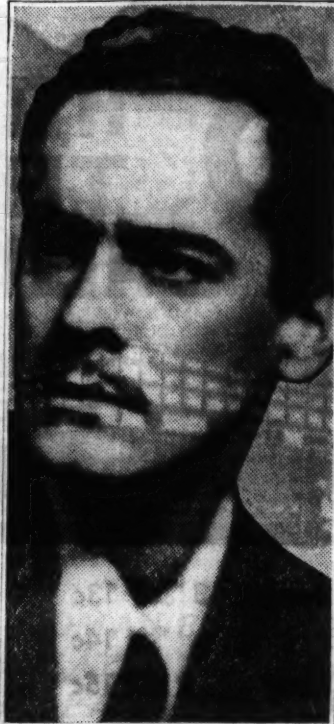

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Police today recorded as accidental a slashed wrist suffered by Ian Keith, stage and movie actor, after his wife had given conflicting versions regarding his injury. Authorities said Mrs. Keith first intimated her husband had attempted suicide.

Physicians said the injuries, inflicted last night in the Keith home, nearly resulted fatally for the 38 year old actor. Keith was reported "doing nicely" today, although he was weak from loss of blood.

Policemen R. J. Gray and J. W. Nelson said the actor's third wife, the former Hildegard Pabst of Chicago, whom he married last June, first told them that her husband had been depressed since a recent severe back injury hampered him from getting screen roles.

Later Mrs. Keith denied she gave police this information and branded the report "ridiculous." She insisted the actor had slipped while shaving and had cut himself on a broken ammonia bottle in the bathroom of their home.

Keith was an actor on Broadway for many years. He played roles with William Faversham, Doris Keane, Marjorie Rambeau, Nazimova, and Lionel Barrymore. He also played opposite Helen Hayes in the stage production of "Mary of Scotland." He met his present wife while they were attending school together in Chicago years ago. Mrs. Keith, daughter of F. REOPEN INQUIRY INTO NORTH SIDE 'L' WRECK TODAY Expect Motorman to Tell His Story.

Investigations will move forward today into the causes of the wreck last Tuesday night in which a steel North Shore train plowed through a wooden elevated lines coach, killing ten persons and injuring fifty-eight others.

The motorman of the North Shore train, Van R. Grooms, 36 years old, 221 Prairie avenue, Highland, is expected to give his testimony. Grooms remained in technical police custody yesterday at the St. Francis hospital, Evanston, where he was treated for injuries received in the crash, which occurred just north of the Granville avenue station of the elevated lines.

Police Plan Questioning.

Dr. C. P. McGarry, 1249 Granville avenue, who is attending Grooms, said his condition had improved and that he may be able to leave the hospital today. Capt. Martin McCormick of the Summerdale police said he would have Grooms taken to the station for questioning when he is released from the hospital. Preliminary investigations tend to place the blame for the crash on Grooms.

Assistant State's Attorney Leslie V. Curtis, who is conducting an investigation, partly to see if charges should be filed against the motorman, said he would try to question Grooms today. "There is no indication that the motorman on the elevated train was doing anything wrong," said Curtis. "I am not in a position yet, however, to say whether I think Grooms was to blame." Curtis said if any charge is placed against Grooms it would be one of manslaughter, "the same as in the case of an automobile driver who might, through criminal negligence and reckless driving, run into and kill some one."

Advocate Safety Devices. While authorities were making their plans to continue investigations, railway and trade engineers yesterday advocated the installation of automatic safety devices by the elevated lines to prevent a recurrence of the tragedy.

They pointed out that preliminary efforts by company officials and civil authorities to determine the cause of Tuesday's wreck had indicated that the "human element" was at fault. Automatic signal and stopping devices, the engineers say, eliminate the possibility of mishaps due to "man failure."

Systems Widely Used. It was said that accidents such as this one brought about the almost universal use of block signal and automatic train control systems by all major railroads and on rapid transit lines in Philadelphia, Boston, and New York.

The block signal system is one which sets a red signal against an oncoming train when there is already one in the circuit ahead. It works automatically. The block signal itself does not prevent accidents, however, as an operator may fail to see the signal light.

To insure further against "man failures" the automatic train control

EINSTEIN DEVISES SOMETHING USEFUL; DISTURBED NO END

New York, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Dr.

Albert Einstein, famous proponent of relativity and of the profound elastic uncertainty of the universe, was revealed today as the inventor of a practical device. It will enable any amateur to use a camera successfully without knowing how to time an exposure.

He did it in collaboration with Dr. Gustav Bucky, a notable in his own field for the development of the curative use of X-rays, borderline rays, and others up and down the electrical spectrum.

Both learned scientists seemed a little embarrassed at being caught doing such a thing. Dr. Einstein kept it a dark secret at Princeton. Dr. Bucky was apologetic here in New York City but equally firm in his refusal to tell how it came about. Their embarrassment seems to arise from the fact that the invention works on a very simple principle. It is nothing more than the photo-electric eye which counts visitors to the museums and opens kitchen doors automatically for waiters with full trays.

was developed to work in connection with the block signal. The control device is one which trips a lever on the trucks of the train if it enters a block which is already occupied. The trip automatically sets the emergency brakes, bringing the train to a stop.

Points to Other Systems.

One engineer said that the elevated system in Chicago has only a "negligible amount" of block signals and no automatic train controls. He said that rapid transit lines in Philadelphia and Boston and most of the system in New York are equipped with these modern safety devices.

"It is only through the use of safety devices," he said, "that we can insure against man failure. When you put 1,000 people on an elevated train they are all in control of one man. No one can see him. No one knows his condition or his reactions while operating the train. For that reason, in a system in which trains move rapidly and traffic is heavy and visibility uncertain, we should use all possible safeguards."

The coroner's jury which is investigating the wreck will recommend that an automatic safety system be installed on the elevated here, one of the members said yesterday. He is L. C. Keter, 8714 North Ashland avenue.

"Our investigation so far," said Keter, "has been concerned with the overcoming of human errors by automatic devices. We feel there have been no substantial improvements in the elevated system here since 1892. Many of the cars used now were in service then. We feel that regardless of the financial condition of the company something must be done to increase safety. If funds cannot be obtained any other way there should be some financial assistance either by the state or federal government. They give money for improving highways and parks; why not for saving lives?"

Authorities agreed that the instal-

SEARCH PRESSED HERE FOR LAST OF GARY BANDITS

Three Dead, One Held
After Bookie Holdup.

Chicago's hoodlum haunts were being searched by police last night for the fifth member of a gang of five bandits who paid dearly for the robbery of a gambling house in Gary Wednesday evening. Three of the robbers were shot to death by Gary police. A fourth surrendered.

The fifth man got away at the first burst of fire. He was the driver of the hand car. Police identified him yesterday as a Chicago west side hoodlum, and said they expected to arrest him soon.

In view of the recent wave of crime by ex-convicts and paroled convicts, the cases of the three slain bandits more than casually interested police. All three were ex-convicts. They were Horace (H. H.) Simmons, 47 years old; Daniel Colucci, 31, and Paul Hoffman, alias Philip Hoffmann, 38.

Two Are Small Fry. Neither Gus Kokenes, 26 years old, the gunman who surrendered, nor the fifth gunman who escaped was ever an inmate of a state penitentiary or reformatory, so far as could be learned last night.

Simmons had the worst record of all. Twenty-eight years ago, after serving a short term in the county jail for burglary, he shot and killed Policeman William Mooney. He was sentenced to the gallows, but Gov. Yates commuted the sentence to life imprisonment. After eight years in prison Simmons was discharged. That was in 1916.

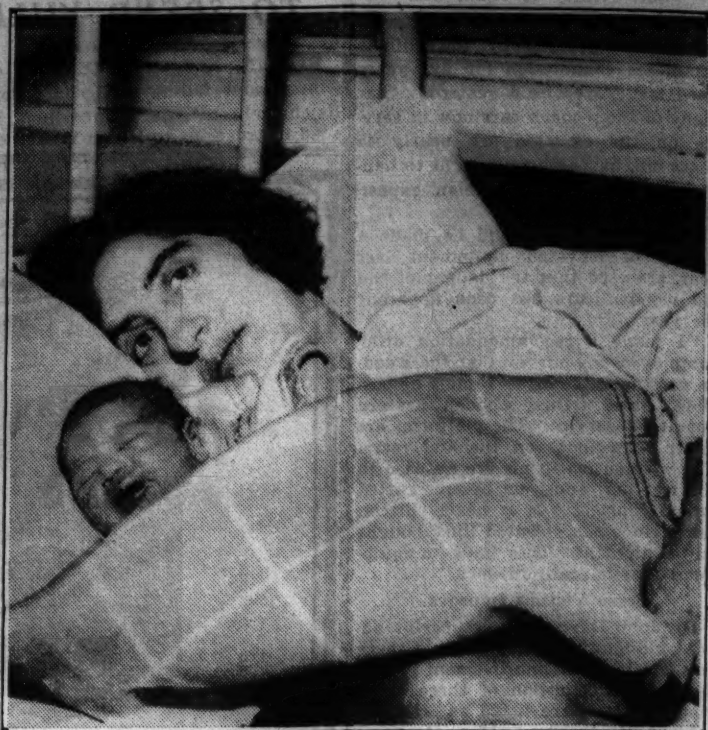

Two years later he was back, this time for robbery. He saved his way out in 1923, but was recaptured and returned six months later. He stayed in Joliet until Dec. 15, 1933, when he was paroled. The parole period ultimately expired.

Record Dates to 1915. Hoffman had the next longest record. This began in September, 1915, when he was sentenced to the Bridgeview reformatory. In 1917 he was sent to Pontiac, but discharged a year later. In that same year, however, he went back to the house of correction. The charge was larceny.

In November, 1919, he reentered the same institution for a year's sentence on a charge of gun toting. In September, 1923, Hoffman was sent to Joliet for attempted larceny. He stayed there until April, 1933, when he was paroled. His parole period expired only six weeks ago.

Colucci's record was in some respects the most interesting. In May, 1930, he was sent to Pontiac for larceny. He was paroled on Aug. 8, 1933. On Feb. 24, 1934, he was arrested by Chicago police. On March 25, 1936, he was arrested by Cicero police and turned over to parole authorities. Evidently they did nothing.

Thanksgiving Baby Born in Taxi

Mrs. Betty Harris, 2725 Mildred street, in the County hospital with her baby girl, born yesterday in taxicab as she and her husband were rushing to another hospital.

Stork Wins Race

David Harris, 34 years old, 2725 Mildred street, ran into the Sheffield avenue police station yesterday morning and told Sgt. Herman Rische that he needed transportation immediately to take Mrs. Harris to a maternity hospital.

The patrol wagon was not available, but Sgt. Rische called a cab and told Fred Parson, 3341 Seminary avenue, who responded, to "step on it." The Harris family started for Mount Sinai hospital, but on the way the baby was born, a six and one-half pound girl. The driver then turned the cab toward the County hospital, which was closer. Mrs. Harris and her daughter are "doing fine," it was announced yesterday afternoon.

Hunt Senders of Pecans Covered by Ground Glass. Monticello, Ill., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Federal inspectors are working with Platt county authorities investigating the sending of two packages of sugar coated pecans containing quantities of pulverized glass to two Monticello business women.

Recipients of the packages are Sarah K. Bean, employe of a Monticello bank, and Elaine Zeigler, stenographer in the state's attorney's office. The packages were mailed in a letter box in front of the Monticello post-office and were crudely addressed. A note inside of each package said, "Hope you have a happy Thanksgiving," and were signed "From your Sunshine Sisters." Both women are members of such an organization, but members disclaim any knowledge of the mysterious packages.

Held as Slayer of Victim Who Called Him 'Mister'. Whitesburg, Ky., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Sam Branham, 60, was held without bond in the slaying of Jim Bob Fugate, 33, who was shot to death at a roadside between the Bath county line and the Rowan line. Branham is alleged to have shot because Fugate addressed him as "mister." Branham insisted that the expression was superfluous. "I abhor big words," Branham said after he was arrested and placed in jail. He was said to have been drinking at the time. Joe Day, Morehead, Ky., operator of the roadside, was shot but slightly. He mixed up in the trouble to try to prevent it.

LEGISLATORS ACT TO END ILLINOIS PAROLE ABUSES

Minimum and Maximum Sentences Favored.

Proposed measures to correct abuses of the state parole system will be presented to the legislature when it convenes at Springfield in January. This was learned yesterday when several legislators announced that they would introduce bills to correct evils of the system, while others said they would support the proposed changes.

State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, Republican leader in the lower house, said he will introduce a bill asking an amendment to the present indeterminate sentence law which would give the power to the courts to fix minimum and maximum sentences in criminal cases. He said that he will also include in his bill a provision that hearings by the parole board be open to the public.

Seeks Limit to Paroles. Another provision would prohibit the parole board from granting more than one parole to any criminal. Mr. Schnackenberg added that he believes that these changes will curtail the power of the parole board to turn dangerous criminals loose on the public.

He declared that he investigated the Pontiac reformatory under the regime of Gov. Emmerson and at that time there were approximately 3,100 prisoners there. At present, he said, he has been told, there are 2,000.

"This is a clear indication that the parole board is turning prisoners out in wholesale lots," he declared. Minimum Sentences Favored. State Senator Harold G. Ward, Democratic leader, said he will introduce similar legislation in the upper branch of the assembly when it convenes. He said he was in full accord with the proposal to give the courts power to fix a minimum time that a prisoner must serve, which could not be disturbed by the parole board.

"I believe that our state welfare agencies are becoming too soft and sentimental," Ward said. "It is time that we look at this problem from the practical side and take steps to solve it."

State Representative Louis G. Beran asserted that he would not only support the proposed changes in the

50 CHILDREN HURT AS PARENTS RIOT AT FALSE MOVIE 'FIRE'

Coaldale, Pa., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—More than 50 children were injured in a wild stampede for exits when frantic parents stormed a motion picture theater here today after a false report that fire had broken out in the auditorium.

The riot came shortly after the management had succeeded in quelling a previous near panic among the 300 children in which a cry of "fire" had sent them rushing for safety.

Seven of the youngsters—all of whom were attending a free Thanksgiving day performance—were seriously injured they were removed to a hospital.

The near tragedy started when a radiator pipe burst, showering live steam on children in the rear of the theater.

parole law, but would ask changes in the personnel of the parole board.

Asks for Business Men. "I believe that the appointment of one or two civic and business leaders to the board would do a lot to improve its administration," he said.

The decision to seek changes in the parole law followed a recent meeting in the office of Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission. That meeting was attended by several judges of the Criminal court and a number of legislators.

At the conference Judges Robert C. O'Connell and John Prystalski expressed the opinion that the trial judge, who has a better knowledge of the case, is more competent to fix a minimum penalty than the parole board. The function of the parole board, they asserted, should be to allow a parole for good behavior in the period between the minimum and maximum penalty.

RESUME ZINTAK TRIAL TODAY IN CRIMINAL COURT

Cross-examination of Frank Witkowski, 2147 Moffat street, former bookkeeper in the Superior court clerk's office and principal state's witness in the embezzlement trial of Frank V. Zintak, ousted clerk of that court, will be resumed this morning in the Criminal court of Judge Robert C. O'Connell. Defense Attorneys Benedict J. Short and George Guenther will attempt to gain more information of an alleged shortage in the office accounts when Zintak was installed four years ago.

Witkowski testified shortly before the close of Wednesday's session of the trial that a shortage of $12,600 existed when Zintak took office. The defense attorneys will also seek to show by the witness that the defendant was a philanthropist and not an embezzler. Witkowski admitted from the witness stand that Zintak withdrew funds from the office to aid needy members of the court and clerk's office.

The jurors, who have been locked up since the trial started last Monday, enjoyed Thanksgiving turkey yesterday in their quarters in the administration building of the county jail. The turkey dinner was ordered by Judge O'Connell.

Wed 50 Years Without a Death in Big Family

Salem, Ill., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Edwin Morton celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home near here today and regarded it as an occasion for real thanksgiving. There has not been a death in the family for 50 years. To add to the enjoyment of the day all 49 other members of the family assembled for a homecoming. In the family now are 10 children, 30 grandchildren, 1 great-grandchild, 5 daughters-in-law, 2 sons-in-law, and 1 grandson-in-law.

MACFADDEN SAFE FOR SECOND TIME IN PLANE CRASH

Falmouth, Mass., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—For the second time in recent weeks, Bernard Macfadden, 68, magazine publisher, escaped without injury today in an airplane accident as he flew here for Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Fulton Oursler, author and magazine editor.

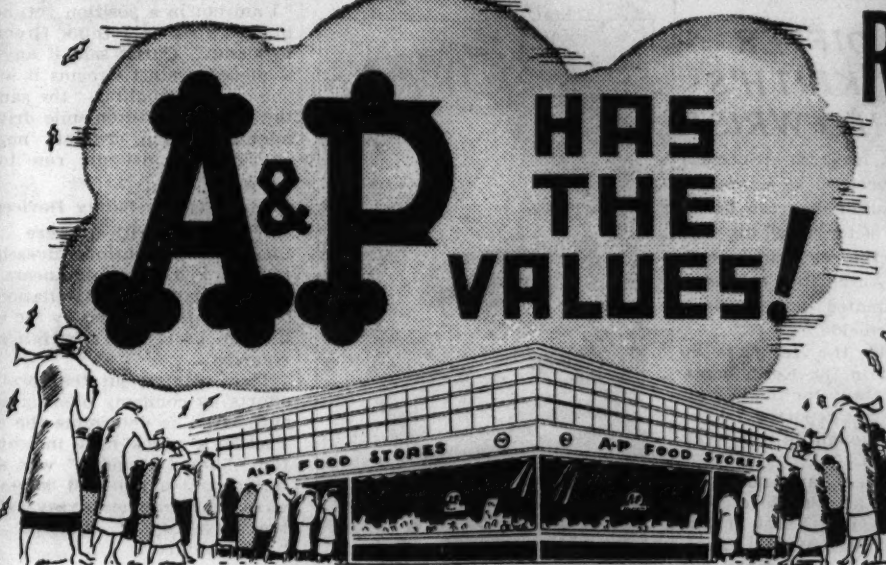

The plane in which the physical culture exponent was riding with a party of friends overturned in landing at the Coanacomet airport. It was said the occupants of the ship apparently were saved from injury by their safety belts, which held them suspended in the up-side-down position.

ELECTION BOARD EMPLOYEES MOVE TO GET BACK PAY

Attorney Breen to File Mandamus Action.

Mandamus action to compel the city council to restore the $175,000 or more deducted from the pay of some 100 employees of the election board since 1932 will be filed in the Superior court today, Attorney James W. Breen, counsel for the employees, announced yesterday.

Breen said he will contend in his suit that the pay cuts, voted by the council as an economy measure, were illegal on the ground that the council can only appropriate for election board employees, but lack power to fix salaries. The salary fixing power is expressly vested by the statutes in the election board and the county judge, Breen contends.

Other Reductions Restored.
The city already has restored "economy" salary deductions amounting to about $1,500,000 for all city employees and $234,047 for 44 Municipal judges and former judges. Breen also represents 29 present and 24 former aldermen who are suing to recover $201,483 in pay cuts they voted against themselves for the years 1931 to 1935.

Breen will appear before Judge Francis B. Allegretti in the Superior court today to oppose a motion for a change of venue in Breen's suit to collect fees from 16 of the 44 judges. The motion is to be made by Attorney David Silbert, whose contention is that Judge Allegretti is a material witness in the case, inasmuch as he was one of the 44 Municipal judges who won salary restorations. Judge Allegretti was elected to the Superior bench in 1934.

Five Judges Pay Fees.
Breen's fee suit, filed on June 12, 1935, originally was directed against 21 of the 44 Municipal judges who won back their salary deductions. Five of the original defendants have since paid their fees and have been dropped from the suit, Breen said.

They are Judges Thomas A. Green, Leon Edelman, and Nuncio J. Bonelli; former Judge Alfred O. Erickson and Judge J. William Brooks, who died several months ago and whose fee was refunded to his widow.

Chief Justice John J. Sonstby, who won back $9,449 in pay cuts, heads the list of the 16 remaining defendants, who decline to pay fees on the ground that they did not engage Breen as their counsel.

Of the other defendants seven recovered $6,299 each through Breen's efforts. They are Judges Justin F. McCarthy, Harold P. O'Connell, Frank M. Padden, John J. Rooney, Edward S. Scheffer, Jay A. Schiller, and Matthew D. Hartigan.

Five Get $5,097 Each.
Five won back $5,097 each in pay deductions. They are Robert Jerome Dunne, now a Circuit judge, and Joseph H. McGarry, John Guldrecht, Lambert K. Hayes, and Michael J. Kasper.

The three other remaining defendants and the amounts of back pay each won are Gibson E. Gorman, $4,987; Frederick W. Elliott, a former judge, $4,755; and Judge Erwin J. Hinton, $4,478.

Breen revealed that the 28 judges who have already paid him his fees did so on the basis of 10 per cent of their pay restorations. He asks no specific amounts in his suit, but requests that the judge in the case set "reasonable" fees.

John Sobers Up So They Find Him for Thanksgiving

John Ewen, 55 years old, drank 50 cents worth of liquor Wednesday night, then wandered into the vestibule of a building at 2300 Warren boulevard and collapsed. He awoke yesterday morning to find he was locked in. Park policeman William Seams discovered his plight and called fire engine company 24. The firemen raised a ladder to a second story window, through which Ewen climbed to freedom.

COUNTY OFFICERS ASK INCREASE OF 154 PAYROLLERS

Judges to Hear 1937 Requests Today.

Requests for 154 additional county payrollers in the various fee offices for 1937, an increase of 8 per cent over last year's total, will be heard by the committee of help of the Circuit court starting today.

The three committee members—Judges Joseph Burke, Cornelius J. Harrington and William V. Brothers—during the next few days will hear the pleas of the office heads in support of their requests, and then will make recommendations to all the Circuit court judges. These recommendations will be used as a basis for 1937 budget demands, which are now being prepared.

Judges Assign Employees.
There are 13 fee offices, whose help is assigned by the Circuit judges. Of the 11 which have submitted their requests for help, eight are asking more employees than they now have, two are asking the same number and one is asking for fewer employees.

Two have not yet submitted requests. The only fee office head who seeks less help for next year is County Treasurer Joseph L. Gill. He asks eleven fewer employees than he has this year.

The officials who believe they can manage without increases in their staffs are Michael J. Flynn, clerk of the County court, and Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach. The two who have not yet reported are Edward H. White, clerk of the Superior court, and William D. Meyering, chief probation officer of the Criminal court. White has explained that he wishes to confer with his elected successor, Victor L. Schlaeger, before submitting his requests.

Kaindl Asks 59 More.
Of the eight fee office heads seeking increased staffs, County Recorder Edward J. Kaindl heads the list, with a plea for 59 extra workers to augment his staff of 284. Sheriff John Toman is asking that his 657 helpers be increased by 54, and Harry H. Hill, chief probation officer of the Juvenile court, wants 33 employees besides the 156 who now work for him.

Clerk Thomas J. Bowler of the Criminal court has requested 53 assistants for next year, five more than he now has. A similar increase is sought by John E. Conroy, clerk of the Circuit court, who has 82 helpers. Clerk Mitchell C. Robin of the Probate court seeks four new employees besides the present 63 in his office, and Coroner Frank J. Walsh asks that his present personnel of 39 be increased by two.

The jury commissioners ask that their present staff of 10 helpers be increased to 13 next year.

PHYSICIAN SCRAWLS STORY OF HIS DEATH AS DRUG TAKES LIFE

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—An imaginative young physician died today of an overdose of cocaine, and his death has been written down as suicide by police, as "martyrdom to science" by his family.

The doctor, Edwin Katskee, 34, left a report of his reactions scrawled over the wall of his office, where his body was found this afternoon by his father, A. Katskee.

The report, written in pencil, crayon and ink, covered most of one wall. It told of convulsions, growing paralysis and inability to speak. Included were instructions to medical students, police and others who might attend narcotic victims. Sardonicly Dr. Katskee warned that such persons had "better take careful note, for I won't be repeating the experiment."

An office building attendant reported today that last night the doctor had called him in several times to assist in his "research." The assistant tested the doctor's reflexes, tightened a blood pressure band and was warned not to let any one remove the notes on the wall.

Police called the death suicide on the grounds a medical man would have known the fatal results of an overdose of cocaine. The family said Dr. Katskee had conducted many such experiments before and evidently was unable to administer a sufficient antidote in time.

WOMAN BURNS TO DEATH BATTLING APARTMENT FIRE
New York, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Miss Mabelle F. Lane, 70, member of a prominent old New York family, was burned to death early today while fighting a fire in the bathroom of her two room apartment in East 55th street, where she had lived for 22 years.

Her body, clad in a black velvet gown, much of which had been burned, was found in the bedroom at 4 a. m. by the superintendent of the building after Miss Lane failed to stop to greet him on her customary daily walk at noon.

Miss Lane was the sister-in-law of Ocosta Nichols, a member of the brokerage concern of Spencer, Trask & Co. She was a daughter of J. Henry Lane, a former dry goods merchant of this city.

Evidence of a tragic struggle against the flames, which may have started from an electric heater, were found by detectives. Two water pitchers, one of them broken, were found near a pile of burned newspapers. A trail of embers led from the bathroom through the living room to the bedroom.

MEXICO WORKERS EXPAND BOYCOTT OF U. S. VESSELS

General Strike Voted by Miners' Syndicate.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The Mexican Confederation of Workers ordered a boycott of United States ships tonight, oil workers charged misrepresentation of their demands by producers, and the miners' syndicate voted a general strike.

As the labor situation became increasingly acute, there were reliable reports first application of the new wealth distribution law would be government appropriation of the city's bull ring.

The boycott order included Gulf of Mexico ports and was an expansion of an earlier order this week for a boycott of American ships calling at Pacific coast ports—in sympathy with maritime strikers in the United States.

Effectiveness Disputed.
Its effectiveness was disputed by the regional confederation of Mexican workers which pointed out the Grace liner Santa Elena had loaded and unloaded cargo at Ensenada, where dock workers are its affiliates.

Government and oil labor representatives got together in an effort to mediate the strike called for this week-end preceded by charges from the workers that their demands had been misrepresented.

The Oil Workers' syndicate utilized full page advertisements in newspapers to defend its position, asserting that the "industry is virtually controlled by American, English, and Dutch capital" and charging the companies were misinforming the public regarding costs of granting the labor demands.

These demands include approximate tripling of wages and long vacations with pay. They would, oil operators assert, "put us out of business."

Seek to Operate Bull Ring.
Reports the city bull ring "torero" would be taken over were advanced after workers petitioned congress to let them operate the amusement center under the expropriation law.

Legislation recently directed formation of a public beneficence society to share in profits of the bull ring and subsequent litigation over this measure was delayed start of the bull fight season. Prospects now are that the season won't be opened before January.

The mine workers, appealing for support from other labor groups, did not set a definite date for their strike in protest against the American Smelting and Refining company's closing of three Mexican plants within the past year, but indicated the date would be set soon. The syndicate appealed to the United Mine Workers of America for backing and named committees to sound out the railway, oil, and electric unions in Mexico.

COSSACKS OF OLD CZARS MAKE VOW TO DIE FOR STALIN

Ukraine Chief Dares Hitler to Invade Russia.

MOSCOW, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Brilliantly garbed Cossacks, fierce traditional fighters for the Russian czars, today pledged their lives to Dictator Josef Stalin and the soviet union.

Before the wildly cheering delegates to the All Union Congress of the Soviets, a group of some sixty Cossacks stood stiffly on the rostrum while their leader shouted that the Cossacks were again an organized fighting unit and ready to lay down their lives for the "soviet fatherland."

Full liberties and the right to enter the Red army were restored only a year ago to the Cossacks, professional soldiers for the old czars. They made their first military appearance in September at Kiev when the picturesque cavalymen raced across the parade ground during a military review.

Greater Respect for Women.
The Cossacks stood rigidly while their spokesman shouted they had now greater respect for women, and abundant happiness on their collective farms.

"Hereafter," their leader said, "we fight for no czars, but shoulder to shoulder with the workingman for defense of our collective farms. We have five divisions already organized and we are ready mercilessly to wipe out German or any other enemies on the ground when they come. We Cossacks are even learning aviation now and we are proud of our restored spirit and right to serve in the great Red army."

Stalin himself joined in the long cheers for the Cossacks.
The Cossacks' appearance aroused the congress from the heavy lethargy during which it heard speeches of approbation for the new constitution from two dozen outland speakers, some of whom spoke in dialect.

Likens Hitler to "A Pig."

Prime Minister Lubchenko of the Ukrainian republic likened Adolf Hitler to "a pig" who "never sees the sky." Couching his roundly applauded address in strongest terms, he branded the German-Japanese anti-communist pact as "a crusade prepared against the soviet union."

The German chancellor, Lubchenko cried, "will not find us as easy to conquer as East Prussia and the Rhineland."

"We Ukrainians have a popular saying now for Hitler. It is: 'Just as a pig never sees the sky, so Hitler never will see our cabbage patches.'

"The Nazi dream of destroying the soviet union," he continued, "our answer to them is contained in the Cossacks' famous letter to the Turkish sultan."

[Lubchenko referred to one of history's classic examples of obsequy. The Don Cossacks' vulgar reply is depicted in Repin's noted painting, 'The Answer of the Cossacks to Sultan Mahmud IV.']

Warning to Poland.

The Ukrainian prime minister warned Poland not to forget "that Rosenberg (Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi foreign affairs official) wrote that destruction of Poland is the first demand of German policy."

"When they talk of the soviet union, they do not remember they are in danger of being strangled by Germany," he said.

[Poland, by implication, was invited to join the German-Japanese accord as a "third party" by Japan in a foreign office explanation of the purposes of the pact.]

Authoritative newspapers declared published explanations of the anti-communist accord were sheer subterfuge and the agreement in reality is nothing but a military pact.

Insists Its a Military Pact.

The authoritative newspaper Pravda asserted Russia had documentary evidence to support its declaration Japan and Germany have a military pact against Russia.

"The Japanese government has had opportunity to convince itself that if the soviet government declared it possessed reliable information about the pact it also had opportunity to prove it by documentary evidence," Pravda said.

The newspaper stated further its belief that the alleged alliance would kill chances for a Soviet-Japanese non-aggression pact.

108 ITALIAN NAVY UNITS SALUTE HUNGARIAN CHIEF

ROME, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini bared the fangs of 108 units of Italy's naval forces today to show the Hungarian regent, Admiral Horthy, Italy could take care of herself and her friends in the Mediterranean and the Adriatic.

As each unit swept by the cruiser Zara its colors were dipped and its guns belched salutes to a one time enemy, but now a closely cherished friend. Admiral Horthy commanded units which during the world war carried Austro-Hungarian hostilities against Italy in the Adriatic.

He wore the full regalia of an admiral as he received the salutes on the Zara's bridge. Standing with him were King Victor Emmanuel, in his general's uniform, and Mussolini, who wore a dark suit and jaunty yachting cap.

Col. De Luxembourg, who claims to be the owner of statutory valued at $500,000, addressed the Upper Darby Rotary club yesterday on the hardships and privations he suffered after being driven from Russia, and of his service in the United States intelligence service during the world war.

His arrest came a few hours later. Now he fears that the "priceless" statutory will be attached to settle the board bill.

MOTHER UNITED WITH DAUGHTER MISSING MONTH

Macon, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Berry and her 14 year old daughter, Gloria, who disappeared from New York Oct. 23 after a school teacher criticized the color of her gymnasium bloomers, embraced here today in a Thanksgiving reunion.

"This is the finest Thanksgiving I've ever had," the mother said.

Mrs. Berry rushed to this city by plane and train after receiving word last yesterday that Mrs. W. E. McCord, Macon policeman, had found the girl in a boarding house here.

Exhausted from a month of worry and the 1,000 mile trip, Mrs. Berry was almost overcome when she met the child. Both mother and daughter expressed happiness.

"I didn't even know it was Thanksgiving," Gloria said.

OSSETZKY MAY USE NOBEL PRIZE TO FIGHT COMMUNISM

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Karl von Ossietzky, German pacifist, who was awarded the 1935 Nobel peace prize, may use the prize fund to establish a foundation to fight communism in Norway. It was reported today.

Ossietzky, long in disfavor with the German government, was recently released from a Nazi concentration camp and is now in a Berlin hospital, seriously ill. His selection by a committee of the Norwegian parliament was made the occasion for a formal diplomatic protest by the German government. The prize is about $40,000.

Pravda said.

The authoritative newspaper Pravda asserted Russia had documentary evidence to support its declaration Japan and Germany have a military pact against Russia.

"The Japanese government has had opportunity to convince itself that if the soviet government declared it possessed reliable information about the pact it also had opportunity to prove it by documentary evidence," Pravda said.

MORE JAPANESE TROOPS HURLED IN CHINESE AREA

Act to Avenge Defeat of Mongol Prince.

KWEISUI, Suiyuan Province, China, Nov. 27 (Friday).—(AP)—Suiyuan's provincial army headquarters declared today two divisions of Manchukuo troops "including many Japanese" had reached the outskirts of Shangtu, Chahar province, preparatory to renewing an attack in Suiyuan.

Chinese sources asserted the Mongols, driven from the strategic city of Pailingmiao, planned to attempt to regain that point and also recapture lost positions in eastern Suiyuan.

Japanese army officers were reported held prisoners by the Suiyuan army after the capture of Pailingmiao.

Gets Aid from Nanking.

Headquarters of Gen. Fu Tso-yi, Suiyuan commander, said the Nanking (central) Chinese government finally had given real assistance to the Suiyuan forces, sending four infantry divisions and one cavalry division to join them.

Word received here said 400 irregulars quit the Mongols and their alleged Japanese helpers at Shangtu and reverted to bandit status.

Chinese military headquarters said Gen. Fu had received a strong threat that the Japanese Kwangtung army would be thrown into the Suiyuanese conflict as a result of the Chinese capture of Pailingmiao.

Gen. Fu, it was stated, had received a message from the high command of the Japanese army in Manchukuo threatening dire reprisals for the capture of the Mongol stronghold of their ally, Prince Teh Wang.

10 Jap Soldiers Slain by Soviets.

HSINKING, Manchukuo, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Ten Japanese soldiers were killed Tuesday in a clash with Russian frontier guards north of Pogranichnaya, the Dornel (Japanese) news agency reported today.

The Russian government at Moscow announced receipt of information of the border fight.

The clash was described as the "most serious" in a series of border encounters between soldiers of the two states. The Manchukuo government protested to the Russian consul general at Harbin, the agency said.

Moscow also declared the Russian government had protested to Japan, sponsor of the autonomous state of Manchukuo.

SMITH EXPLAINS SOURCE, MEANING OF 'REAL MCCOY'

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—(Special).—Alfred E. Smith, at the request of Dr. Percy Fridenberg of New York, has given the origin of one of Mr. Smith's familiar expressions, "The real McCoy." The phrase appeared several days ago in a Washington dispatch and Dr. Fridenberg, inquiring its exact meaning and beginning, was referred to Mr. Smith and from him received the following answer:

"Every small town in the United States has what we call an oracle, who knows a little bit of everything. The oracle of the Bowery many years ago was a man by the name of McCoy, so that when any matter came up for discussion the expression, 'It's the real McCoy' came into being and usually in this manner:

"Well, I will give you the low-down on that; I will give you the inside story, the real McCoy."

FRENCH EMPLOYERS REJECT 40 HOUR WEEK; END LABOR PARLEY

PARIS, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The French Employers' federation refused in effect today to accept a 40 hour week as the basis for settlement of current labor difficulties by breaking off negotiations for application of the Matignon accord.

The Matignon accord provides for the 40 hour work week for French industry and the government has been striving gradually to put it into effect. It was the basis for settlement of widespread strikes last June and resulted in the evacuation of worker-held factories.

The employers notified Premier Blum they refused to continue negotiations because of renewed occupation of factories in the past two weeks, involving at least 25,000 workers throughout France.

A truck loaded with copies of the rightist weekly Gringoire was seized today by five armed men who attempted to run it into the Seine. The car was found abandoned, tottering on the river bank. Gringoire led the attacks on Minister of the Interior Roger Salengro, which, leftists charged, led to his suicide.

'TARZAN' TELLS OF $500,000 SUIT AGAINST WOMAN

Johnny (Tarzan) Weissmuller, swimmer and movie actor, stopped in Chicago yesterday on his way from New York to Hollywood to eat Thanksgiving dinner with his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Weissmuller of 729 Irving Park boulevard, his brother Peter, and the latter's wife. They dined at the Illinois Athletic club, scene of many of Weissmuller's record-setting swimming races.

Between jobs at white meat and drumstick Weissmuller explained the $500,000 suit he has initiated against Mrs. Natalie Hess Winslow of New York, who accused the actor-swimmer of blacking an eye of her husband, Lieut. Cameron Winslow, U. S. N., in a Manhattan night club Tuesday night.

Winslow now admits I was not near him when he was hit," said Weissmuller. "But I'm pretty sore about all the things his wife said about me the next morning. They did me no good when they got out to Hollywood."

Weissmuller's movie employers ordered him back to Hollywood when they heard about the night club incident.

LABOR WILL ASK AMENDMENTS TO U.S. SECURITY ACT

Federation Head Tells of Legislative Program.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Tampa, Fla., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Organized labor will work at the coming session for wide-reaching amendments to the Social Security act, including extension of its benefits to agricultural workers, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced today.

Mr. Green also pledged the A. F. of L. to back a constitutional amendment to validate any sections of the act, which may be declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court.

The A. F. of L. legislative program covers all three of the principal sections of the act, unemployment compensation, old age benefits and old age (noncontributory) pensions.

Details of Program.

The labor program on unemployment compensation is as follows:

1. Extension of benefits to some 3,000,000 agricultural workers and to employees of employers of less than eight persons. The federal pay roll tax for unemployment compensation now applies only to employers of eight or more. State unemployment acts, however, may allow benefits to workers in smaller establishments.
2. Abandonment of the present system of allowing a federal offset of 50 per cent of the federal tax for taxes paid under an approved state unemployment system, in favor of a direct collection of the tax by the government, to be returned to the states as grants in aid. This is advocated in the belief that the grant-in-aid plan is more likely to stand up on constitutional grounds than the offset plan.
3. Opposition to the individual reserve plan in state unemployment acts, under which the payments of each employer are segregated and his employees receive benefits only so long as the reserve lasts.

The federation, Mr. Green said, opposes institution at this time of merit rating systems under which taxes on various industries (not individual employers) would vary according to the unemployment hazards of each industry. This opposition is on the contention that there is not sufficient information at this time on which to base such merit ratings. Mr. Green endorsed the plan in principle, as an influence upon employers to plan their operations so as to cut seasonal unemployment to a minimum.

Pension Changes Proposed.

The A. F. of L. approves the present plan under which employees share with employers in contributions to old age benefits payable after 65. It, however, proposes the following changes in the contributory pension system:

1. Inclusion of agriculture workers.
2. Direct contributions by the federal government to the pension fund, on the grounds that employers pass on their present contributions, either to consumers in higher prices which workers share in paying, or directly to workers in lower wages, whereas federal contributions would be financed principally by income taxes, which cannot be passed on.

3. Revision of the pension reserve plan to provide that all contributions shall be earmarked directly for the fund, instead of depending on the will of congress, each year, to appropriate them to the fund. A constitutional amendment may be necessary to make this possible, Mr. Green conceded.

"These pensions are too important to depend upon the will of some future congress," he said. "They must be guaranteed beyond any doubt."

Annual Report Recalled.

Mr. Green was not prepared to comment on proposals that the entire reserve fund, which it has been estimated will reach 46 billion dollars by 1980, be replaced by a pay-as-we-go system. The annual report of the A. F. of L. executive council, drafted before the November election when the reserve fund was under strenuous attack by Gov. Landon, stated:

"Under title II of the act [the old age benefit section] we are confronted with a fact that has already been the cause of widespread criticism. This is the reserve that will be built up under the existing law. Instead of accumulating this enormous reserve it has been suggested that the law might be so changed as to have the required funds made available each year on the basis of estimated need."

The A. F. of L. will seek two changes in the noncontributory old age pensions which are administered by the states on a fund matching basis with the federal government. These are:

1. Increase the present maximum monthly payment, $15 from the federal government matching $15 from the state, to a maximum federal contribution of $25, making possible a total monthly pension of $50.
2. Elimination of means tests from

STRIKING SEAMEN AGREE ON RELIEF SHIPS TO ALASKA

Clear Way for Sending Food in Emergency.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 26.—(P)—The government untangled part of the west coast shipping tieup today by obtaining verbal agreements with striking maritime unions to man federally operated relief ships to Alaska "for the duration of the emergency."

Interior department authorities moved at high speed to get an emergency ship under way to Sitka and Cordova within five days to relieve what was described as a situation threatening to become serious.

While thousands of striking men sat down to skippy Thanksgiving dinners, union negotiators and government representatives worked out plans for using two fishing vessels and one government ship to maintain ten day service between Seattle and the northern territory.

The holiday interrupted peace negotiations between one group of shipowners and the unions. The plight of strike-isolated Hawaii remained to be considered. Government spokesmen said they would take up the island problem as soon as they could observe the results of the Alaska arrangement.

Liner Remains Tied Up.

New York, Nov. 26.—(P)—The United States liner President Harding was held in New York harbor today lacking a full crew as a result of the seamen's strike, while a water front fight sent two men to a hospital.

The President Harding was anchored near the Statue of Liberty, more than 28 hours after its scheduled sailing for Europe with mail and cargo only. Even with passenger space closed, the trans-Atlantic ship was still short the required skeleton crew of 73 men.

Eighteen men quit just before sailing time yesterday and later, when the ship left its pier and moved out into the harbor, it was necessary to bring out eight seamen and an engineer to complete the crew.

A free for all sailors' fight occurred at 21st street near the North river. Two men taken to hospitals under arrest were William Hopkins, 38, who was badly bruised about the face, and Sidney Cohen, 31, whose left elbow was fractured.

FRENCH DOCKMEN JOIN.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—(P)—Leaders of the French dockworkers' union told United States embassy officials tonight that their refusal to unload the U. S. liner Washington at Le Havre was part of an international movement against American ships.

These union chiefs said organized dockmen throughout the world would refuse to unload cargo from American ships which left American ports since the United States shipping strike began.

The dock union chiefs refused to countermand their orders against unloading the Washington even at the informal request of the American embassy.

The United States lines, meanwhile, appealed to the French government.

EVANSTON GIVES SANCTUARY TO A RED DISCUSSION

Pupils Pay for Article Barred in Washington.

Sanctuary seems to have been found in Evanston for two news weeklies for schools which were banned from District of Columbia classrooms last week under a federal law forbidding the teaching of communism in the district.

Current issues of the papers in question have arrived in the Evanston Township High school, it was learned yesterday. They are the Weekly News Review and the American Observer, carrying a discussion of the theory and practice of communism. They were distributed to pupils in history and economics. The publications are part of the reading matter for these pupils, who are required to subscribe.

Three Papers for Pupils.
The weeklies are put out by the Civic Education Service of Washington, D. C., which publishes three high school papers. The Junior Review goes to freshmen in high schools, the Weekly News Review to sophomores and some of the juniors, the American Observer to the juniors and to seniors.

Freshmen taking the Junior Review pay 30 cents a semester; sophomores and juniors taking the News Review pay 40 cents; juniors and seniors taking the Observer 40 cents a semester. Prof. S. S. Ulrey, who teaches United States and modern European history at Evanston High school, said the three publications are in use at New Trier, Waukegan, and Deerfield, Illinois high schools, as well as Evanston High. The Chicago public schools do not use them.

Article Last of Series.
The article on communism which led the District of Columbia authorities to put up the classroom bars is the last of a series which included democracy and Fascism. The article appears in the News Review and the Observer, but not in the Junior Review. In Washington, after authorities acted, officials of the Civic Education Service said the article outlined accomplishments and shortcomings of communist Russia.

Some Evanston parents made a comment yesterday that although the article says dictatorship and loss of civil liberties and private property are a price of the soviet plan, still it paints communism as somewhat pinkish instead of red.

"Under true communism there is only one class of people—the workers," says the article. "The owning classes are dispossessed of their property and if they put up opposition they are either driven out of the country, put into prison camps, or put to death."

Communist Excuse for Force.
"The communists claim that they are obliged to take such drastic action in destroying the owning classes in order to prevent these classes from constantly resisting the new government and trying to overthrow it."

Dwelling on conditions in Russia, the article says:
"Now it is a fact that Russia has made great industrial progress under communism. There has been no depression, of the capitalist variety, in that country. Unemployment is never a problem. Every one who can and will work does not have a hard time finding a job. Furthermore, farm, mine, and factory production in Rus-

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1936 Traffic Toll

Over 80 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

The article concludes with the following:

"If there should be economic breakdown in this country, if it should come about that millions of Americans were hungry and without hope for the future, then they might turn to advocates of other systems. Those Americans who wish to avoid change in the direction either of Fascism or communism can best realize their ends by maintaining stability and prosperity and by seeing to it that the masses of the people realize in increasing measure their desire for well-being and security and opportunity."

BEN MARDEN'S RIVIERA, CLOSED CABARET, BURNS

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Fire of undetermined origin tonight swept Ben Marden's Riviera, a summer cabaret on a terrace of the Fallsides on the New Jersey side of the Hudson river opposite Manhattan.

Firemen said the large, one story wooden building, with its expensive decorations, probably would be a total loss. The building was closed for the winter a few weeks ago.

The building was erected in 1906 on the ledge known as Hudson terrace, affording a magnificent view of the river below. Before Marden, the night club impresario, took over the place four years ago it was run as a roadhouse under the name of Villa Richard. Harry Richman, George Tapp, and other entertainers have worked there.

KEELEY ALCOHOL CURE LIST JUMPS TO 1930 RECORD

Marlin Nelson, secretary of the Keeley Institute at Dwight, reported yesterday that the institute has treated more patients for alcoholism this year than in any corresponding period since 1930. The number of patients this year, he said, is 73 per cent greater than the number taking the cure in 1933, the last year of prohibition.

Nelson attributed the increase to improvement in business conditions, the greater ease with which liquor may now be obtained, and the increasing tendency of women to drink in public.

He said 85 per cent of the institute patients are married. The average age of the married patients is 43; that of the single ones is 39.

The Man on the Blue

By Luke Short

SYNOPSIS

Fleeing the law, Shamrock, a young westerner, reaches Arizona on his blue, and saves the life of Sheriff Lobell, who is about to be shot by a girl, Nancy Hyatt. The Hyatts—Nancy and her brother, Mayo—have lost their ranch, the Double Diamond, to the bank. Mayo, recently paroled, has threatened to kill any man who serves him with a subpoena. Because Shamrock believes it was Mayo who betrayed the man who brought him up to accept the dangerous task of serving the papers. A reward is out for Shamrock for shooting a town marshal in self-defense over a card game. Shamrock confronts Mayo Hyatt at his ranch and is shot by Nancy. When he regains consciousness he learns he has misjudged Hyatt, but Nancy accuses him. She tried to shoot Lobell to save her brother, paroled on good behavior, from killing him.

INSTALLMENT XI THE SHOWDOWN

Nancy's voice choked up suddenly and she turned from him. "Get out! What do you know about love—about love for a brother, or for the place you were born. A gunfighting swine—like the man that pays you. Get out!" Shamrock looked down at the hat in his hands. "I—I'm mighty sorry. I'll go."

He stepped around her and walked to the door.

"Wait!"

When he stopped and turned, he saw her chin was quivering, but her head was up, proud.

"Would it hurt you to do a favor for me—a favor that won't harm you—or Lobell?"

"No."

"Don't—don't mention to Mayo that I tried to kill Lobell. Don't ever let him know it. Can't—can't you see what it would mean—that he would do?"

"I won't tell," Shamrock said, and stepped through the door.

Outside, he leaned against the door jamb a moment to take some of the weight off his shaking knees. A quiet, sick feeling of shame seemed to crawl all through him as he thought of what he had said and done to Nancy in his ignorance. He understood now that she was fighting for something more dear than her own life, fighting for her brother's life because he couldn't do it himself. In his blind and unheeding single mindedness, Shamrock had helped Hyatt's enemies.

The ineffectiveness of their scheme to save the ranch had a pathos, too, that Shamrock had not missed. Defying the service of the paper would not save the ranch. Too, Nancy's hate of Lobell seemed an obsession, and a wrong one. Was he any more than a blundering petty crook in office because he was too lazy to ranch and who was an instrument of the law and the courts?

Thinking thus, Shamrock looked off toward the horse corral. The sun was already so low the valley was in shadow and the old lone cottonwood in front of the house had stopped the daylong rustling of its leaves as the quiet of evening came on. He must have been unconscious a long time. Far off he could hear the measured bawling trumpet of a cow calling her early calf. Close from the barn, he could hear the thin chitter of swallows. To him it seemed utterly peaceful and right. Worth fighting for, hadn't she said?

He straightened and headed for the corral. He tried to think of where he would go when Blue was saddled, but Nancy's face and her words would not be thrust out of his mind.

At the corral Blue walked up to the bars and nickered as he approached. Shamrock scratched his ears. The cheery sound of banging pans came from the cookshack and a glance over his shoulder told Shamrock the hands were washing up. Their horses were in the corral, watching him with curious and trustful eyes.

He rolled a smoke and lighted it and Blue backed away from the smoke, watching him reproachfully. Shamrock knew he should get Blue saddled and ride off, away from this strange business that didn't concern him, but he felt a reluctance to leave.

Blue flickered his ears just a little when Shamrock sighed, dragged his foot off the corral bar and dropped his cigarette. He headed for the bunkhouse.

On the way to it he had to pass the shed and Matt stepped out beside him.

"Where's Hyatt?" Shamrock asked.

Matt did not answer, simply looked at him.

"It's not that," Shamrock said. "I want to talk to him."

"He's down at that far barn."

Shamrock walked slowly across the corral lot to the barn. Hyatt was just closing the big door when he saw Shamrock. He finished his job, then came over.

"Is this straight about Lobell?" Shamrock asked bluntly.

"Has Nancy been talkin' to you?"

Shamrock nodded.

"Yes," Hyatt said.

"You can't go down and choose him because you're on parole. Is that it?"

Hyatt nodded.

"But why Lobell? He's only the law. You've lost the spread to the bank."

"And he was mostly the cause," Hyatt said quietly. "Lobell was a horse trader before he was sheriff. He got the office because the ranchers in this county are too damned selfish—too busy makin' money on beef—to put up a good man, or run themselves. Lobell's stopped all the rustlin' in the county except the stealin' of the Double Diamond stuff. And he won't try to stop that. While all the spreads in this county had just a natural loss, the Double Diamond has been rustled to ruin. Hyatt at a time driven off, and by experts. Lobell has set by and watched us rustled into debt, to ruin, and all the ranchers of the Santa Rita slope have stood by and watched it too."

"Why?"

"Because they hated my dad. Dad was a hard man, and a successful one. He got the best land and most of the water in the county by shrewd bargainin'. They hate me because I ran off with the wild bunch and turned against dad. And they hate me more since I got home. They're afraid of me, and they're glad the Double Diamond is lost. If I went to town and combed the sheriff out, even drew a gun on him, they'd be here with a lynch mob in an hour."

"But Lobell don't get the spread?"

"No," Hyatt said bitterly. "It's the bank. Dad borrowed money up to his neck to get more land and stock. After he was killed—a miner gulched him one night—they started clampin' down. Our paper had time to run, but they called it in. I wasn't here. Matt was short-handed. Nancy was tryin' to run the place. They saw a chance to get the ranch and they took it. We haven't even got a corral count of beef left. The range is cleaned. The place is in their hands—almost. It's up to Lobell to evict us, and he'll do it for the pleasure."

"What can you do?"

"Fight."

"What good'll that do?"

Hyatt looked off over the hills before he answered, and when he did his voice was husky with passion. "Only this. I'll kill Lobell if I can and I'll down a dozen of these plow ranchers—neighbors. I'll get troops here before they get me out. They'll remember the Hyatts, and the Double Diamond as long as men talk in this county. And Lobell will only be a memory along with us."

"What do you figure he aims to do now?"

"He'll come out and warn us to get off. I'll run him off the place. Then he'll be out with a posse. He spread his hands expressively. "Then we'll fight to the finish."

Shamrock hitched up his belts. "I see," he said softly. "And I brought it on—the showdown."

"It had to come," Hyatt said grimly. "Lobell's playin' it legal, so we can't resort to law. He's been tryin' to serve that paper for a month, and nobody would do it till you come along. Now it's served. We're ready."

BY MARY MEADE.

The guests have departed and the Thanksgiving table has been dismantled and deprived of its two extra leaves. Only the ashes of last night's cheerful woodblaze remain in the fireplace. Today we "clean up" after the holiday festivities, with a sigh of regret that it all is over.

But in the icebox there are many reminders of yesterday's feast. The forlorn looking turkey skeleton still has fragments of meat clinging here and there, enough for another meal or two. There are leftover mashed potatoes (it seemed a shame to throw them out), other leftover vegetables, and plenty of the dessert, fruit, and nuts. What to do with them?

Getting rid of the rest of the turkey is no worry, especially since so many members of the family have that habit of pecking into the refrigerator at the oddest times. And at every peek there is a diminishing of turkey meat.

But leftover vegetables are another matter. The family will eat them simply "warmed up," of course, but warmed-up vegetables are purely leftovers, nothing more. Put the mashed potatoes into attractively shaped cakes, brown them with a deep crust, and serve them piping hot with the leftover turkey meat cut into slices, and they take on the distinction of a food freshly cooked. Scatter leftover sweet potatoes with apples. Bake leftover vegetables in a casserole dish in cream sauce with buttered crumbs. A combination of vegetables, carrots, peas, celery, tomatoes, almost any group you may find replying in old lots in the refrigerator, make delicious casserole dishes.

Fruits and nuts will make dozens of different salads and desserts. Cakes and cookies (if they won't be eaten readily as they are) will make puddings and brown betties.

If you are cook and can get to the cold turkey before the rest of the family, snatch the remaining flesh from his bones, toss the bare frame to the family tabby, and make a turkey salad for lunch.

Turkey Salad.

2 cups cooked dried turkey
2 tablespoons chopped stuffed olives
1 cup diced celery
1/2 cup toasted almonds, chopped
2 tablespoons capers
2 tablespoons chopped ripe olives
2 tablespoons chopped mixed pickles
2 sliced hard cooked eggs
1/2 cup mayonnaise

Combine all ingredients lightly and serve on lettuce or watercress.

Or you might like this frozen turkey salad, called Turkey Supreme.

1 1/2 cups cold dried turkey
1/2 cup chopped pecan meats
1/2 cup crushed pineapple, drained
1/2 pint whipping cream
1 cup mayonnaise

Combine turkey, nuts, and pineapple. Whip the cream, fold in the mayonnaise, and fold in the turkey mixture. Freeze in refrigerator tray for from 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 hours.

MANY WAYS TO PREPARE FISH BESIDES FRYING

Good Recipes for Your Scrapbook.

There appears to be an amazing lack of knowledge when it comes to cooking fish. Many housewives are utterly confused about the various methods of preparing this Friday food and know no other way of serving it than in fried form.

As this is a day on which many serve fish, the following general directions are printed for baking, broiling, steaming, boiling, and pan frying. These will make a valuable addition to your scrapbook.

Quick Baked Fish.

Cut fish in pieces for serving, dip in milk (with a teaspoon of salt added for each cup) and then in fine crumbs. Place in a buttered oven dish (one that you can send to the table) and sprinkle with just a little oil or melted butter.

Bake for about 10 minutes in a hot oven, 350 degrees F., without covering or adding water. Small fish weighing a pound or less can be baked whole the same way.

Quick cooking at a high temperature has been found to be the best way of retaining both flavor and food value.

Broiled Fish.

Split and clean whole fish. Wipe dry and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Lay on greased broiler, broil on flesh side first (have the broiler preheated and hot), then turn to brown and crisp the skin side.

Fillet first should be brushed with oil, then seasoned and finally browned quickly on either side.

Baked Stuffed Fish.

Clean and scale whole fish and salt well inside and out. Stuff and sew up. Brush with oil and place in oiled ovenproof baking dish. Skewer into circle if necessary to fit dish.

Bake for 15 minutes at 500 degrees F., then lower heat to 400 degrees F. and bake for 30 to 45 minutes, according to the size of the fish. Allow 10 minutes per pound up to 4 pounds and 5 minutes for each pound over. Dry fish need an occasional basting; for oily meat fish it is best not to baste.

Steamed Fish.

Clean either whole fish or serving sized pieces. [This method is especially recommended for dry meat fish.]

HERE'S RECIPE FOR MAKING MARRONS; WHY NOT TRY IT?

This is the way to make marrons or preserved chestnuts:

MARRONS.

Cook chestnuts in their shells with water to cover for an hour. Remove the shells while hot, take off the outer skin of nut meats and drop into a sirup of equal parts of sugar and water. Cook the sirup until the consistency of cream. Flavor with vanilla or brandy and fill clean, hot jars. Seal at once.

Sprinkle with salt and steam over boiling water.

If the fish is in a large thick piece it should be turned once. It is an excellent idea to wrap fish in cheesecloth or pieces of parchment paper.

Boiled Fish.

Drop fish into boiling water, seasoned with one teaspoon salt and two tablespoons of vinegar or lemon juice to the quart. After five minutes of rapid boiling reduce temperature and simmer until tender. Allow 6 to 10 minutes to the pound.

Pan Fried Fish.

Dip small whole fish or serving sized pieces in milk and then in seasoned crumbs or cornmeal. Brown quickly in a small amount of fat, using a hot skillet, drain on unglazed paper, and serve immediately.

These fish are oily meat: Halibut, lake trout, mackerel, salmon. These are dry meat: Haddock, carp, flannel haddock, pike, snappers.

All Cuts of Lamb

Are Economical Buys

Chicago housewives planning stews and ragouts for the coming week-end will find virtually all cuts of lamb among the most economical meat buys, according to the Committee on Marketing Information of the U. S. Council. In addition to such cuts as lamb breast and lamb shoulder chops, retailers also are featuring legs of lamb at very attractive prices. Also most cuts of veal are selling at prices about the same as the low levels prevailing last week.

Open Christmas Seal Sale

in Chicago and the Nation

The thirtieth annual Christmas Seal sale was launched yesterday by the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute and 1,981 other tuberculosis associations throughout the country.

HOLIDAY DINNER LEFTOVERS DULL GROCERY TRADE

Food merchants in Chicago and suburbs will be busy today restocking shelves and counters left bare Wednesday night when housewives finished shopping for Thanksgiving dinners. Many price tags are being marked up, following pre-holiday sales. Store managers know from experience that they cannot tempt many of their customers away from turkey hash today and tomorrow by offering bargains.

Several staple items that have been on sale for the last two week-ends have been put back to former prices. Included in the list are flour, lard, and sugar. Eggs are higher in stores generally, many merchants having raised the price of the better grade eggs as much as 4 and 5 cents a dozen.

Green beans are higher than a week ago. Many stores have higher prices on carrots, fresh tomatoes, head lettuce, baking potatoes, turnips, and cabbage.

Butter Goes Down.

Butter is cheaper than last week, reductions ranging from 1 to 3 cents a pound in the different stores. Celery and cranberries are lower. Cockey apples are lower in some stores and higher in others. Grapefruits still are unusually cheap. Florida oranges and spinach are down in a few stores.

Fresh meat bargains will be scarce today and tomorrow in the butcher shops. Although retail meat dealers gave special attention this week to sales of poultry for the holiday, prices on most kinds of meat cuts have either held to the level of a week ago or have been advanced slightly. Beef rib roasts, cured hams, and the cheaper cuts of pork loin roasts are higher than last week in many shops. Some have added 3 cents a pound to the cost of white fish.

Stewing chickens are 1 cent a pound higher in some stores, after having been reduced in price to meet the competition offered by turkey sales last week-end. A few butchers are selling leg of lamb 2 cents a pound cheaper than last week.

Wholesale Prices Steady.

Wholesale prices of dressed meats made but few changes during the week in packingtown. The meat trade merely marked time during the rush on Thanksgiving poultry.

Live stock prices showed an upward trend, according to government reports. The better grades of light beef cattle sold strong to 25 cents a hundred pounds higher. A new high price for the season was established for yearling steers and heifers, the steers reaching $12.35 a hundred pounds and heifers $12 a hundred. The market for heavy beef steers showed some weakness, because of unusually large shipments of cattle to the live stock show. Veal calves sold 50 cents to $1 a hundred higher and fat lambs advanced 25 cents a hundredweight. Heavy butcher hogs went up 10 cents a hundred pounds while light weight hogs dropped slightly because of increased receipts.

CITY OBSERVES THANKSGIVING IN THE USUAL WAY

Turkey Holds Spotlight in All Walks of Life.

Thanksgiving day was observed in Chicago yesterday with feasting and prayer and family reunions. After morning services in churches many persons attended gatherings of clans around family hearths and reminiscences of earlier Thanksgiving celebrations, including some lean ones of depression years, probably were common.

Whether in Lake Shore drive or Lake Forest homes, or small flats above stores or in institutions where monotonous routine was broken and Thanksgiving was a real event, the menu was pretty much the same, with turkey, chicken or goose, cranberry sauce, and pumpkin pie as the chief ingredients.

Fitting Weather for the Day.

The weather contributed to the atmosphere of hearty good living associated with Thanksgiving. The morning was chill and crisp, the afternoon sunny, with blue skies and temperatures which mounted but remained brisk enough to incite turkey appetites. In the suburbs, a suggestion of snow on the ground recalled New England Thanksgivings to some of the older generation.

At the Cook County hospital 2,400 adults and 350 children were cheerful as 400 pounds of turkey, 1,800 pounds of chicken, celery, cranberries, sweet potatoes and baked apples were served.

One of the largest institutional feasts was at the Oak Forest infirmary, where 4,100 residents and patients had 5,000 pounds of turkey. Turkey also was the order at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital for all 1,705 patients, and for the 300 boys and girls in the Juvenile Detention home. A chicken dinner was served in the Bridewell.

Chicken at County Jail.

At the Cook county jail Warden Frank Sain provided 700 inmates with 200 four pound chickens and extras.

As a reporter approached one of the women's tiers, Mrs. Mildred Mary Bolton, under sentence to die in the electric chair, went into hiding. This is her customary procedure when guests approach, said Matron Mary Kennedy.

The other women sat about the tables smoking and eating candies and nuts contributed by Mrs. Minnie Marshall of the Church federation and members of the Moody Bible Institute.

Alimony row prisoners appeared cheerful. They talked about their good dinner and several agreed with the comment of one who said, "My

OFFICERS OF CABINET SPEND THE HOLIDAYS IN VARIETY OF WAYS

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—With the boss away on the high seas, those members of President Roosevelt's cabinet family who were in town today celebrated Thanksgiving in a variety of ways.

Acting Secretary of State R. Walton Moore, whose chief, Cordell Hull, was in South America along with Mr. Roosevelt for a "good neighbor parley," spent most of the day at his office keeping in touch with the situation in war-torn Spain, where evacuation of the United States embassy is expected from Madrid to Valencia.

Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes cleared a few papers off his desk and then departed at noon for home and turkey. Attorney General Homer Cummings also found time for a midday feast, although he did go over some pressing legal matters at the department of justice.

The busiest of the cabinet members, however, was Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper. He was the speaker at union Thanksgiving services in four churches and tonight went to the navy relief ball with Mrs. Roper and Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson and Mrs. Swanson.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace returned from a two week trip into the southwest in time for a family dinner. Secretary of War Harry Woodring had several intimate friends in for the holiday repast.

Among the absentees, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins was in New York with her family. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. spent the day at his Fishkill Farm estate in New York, and Postmaster General James A. Farley was in London.

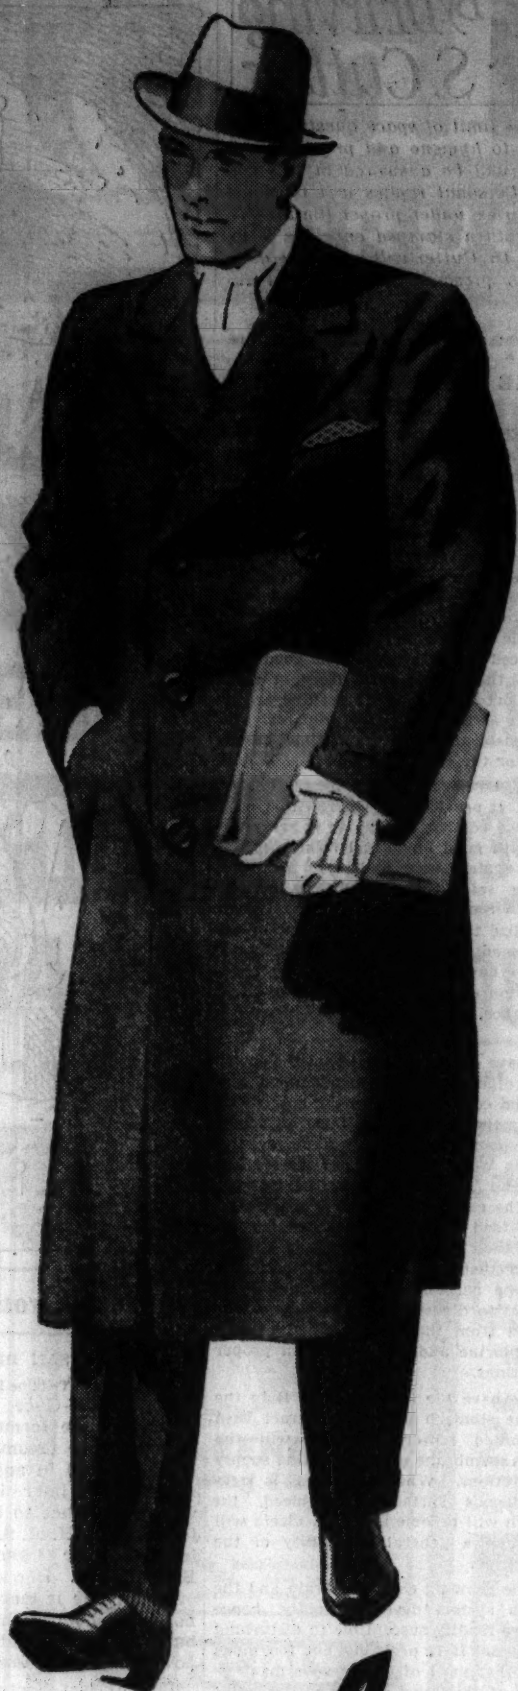

wife doesn't know how nice it is here or she wouldn't keep me here."

Many Fed at Missions.

Missions throughout the loop were well attended as homeless men went in out of the cold. At the Cathedral shelter more than 1,000 jobless men were given all they wanted to eat, and 200 families were supplied with baskets, said the Rev. Canon David E. Gibson.

Forty children at the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children were supplied with a Thanksgiving dinner and entertainment donated by Mrs. L. M. Kessel, 1342 Independence boulevard. Harry Block served 2,000 pounds of turkey with trimmings to the needy in his restaurant at 116 East Cermak road, as he has for 11 years on Thanksgiving. Five hundred poor children were fed at the North Shore Congregational church, Sheridan road and Wilson avenue. Ninety-five needy children were treated to a feast at the Adventurers' club, 14 North Michigan avenue.

SCREAMS FRIGHTEN BANDIT.
Logansport, Ind., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Screams of Mrs. Octa Clawson, proprietor of a general store at Galveston, near here, frightened a bandit who entered her store last night with a sawed off shotgun.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

Work After Holiday.

November 26, 1936.

WORKMEN on the Tribune's Yorkville Experimental farm took time off today to rest and eat big Thanksgiving dinners, but they have a tough job ahead for tomorrow. They are planning to move a windmill tower from an old well to a new one that was dug last summer.

The windmill is a comparatively small one, having a diameter of only six feet. It is mounted on a tower 40 feet high and eight feet square at the base. The men believe they can move the entire outfit and install it in its new location without taking it apart.

The corners of the tower will be bolted to anchors set four feet in the ground in holes two feet wide and three feet long. The anchors are embedded in six inches of concrete at the bottoms of the holes, with dirt tamped in on top to the level of the ground.

Idle Seven Years.

The windmill has not been used for the last seven years, although it has been kept intact and in running order. It has been attached to a pump in a well with a weak vein. The pump had to be run at high speed with a gas engine in order to force enough water from the skimpy supply, so the windmill stood idle.

The well nearly ran dry during the droughts of 1934 and 1935 and another well was dug last summer to take its place. A strong flow of water was struck in the new well at a depth of 100 feet. Tests have shown that it will stand continuous pumping at the rate of 15 to 20 gallons per minute if necessary.

Weaning 91 Pigs.

A bunch of 91 pigs, farrowed this fall on the Yorkville farm, were confined to a small lot this week to be weaned. They have only a small range for exercise. The pigs are being fed ground oats in self-feeders, tankage, and ear corn. They have access at all times to fresh water.

Another group of 78 pigs, farrowed earlier in the fall, already have been weaned from their mothers and are running in alfalfa pasture. They also are getting ground oats, tankage, and corn. There are 20 more fall pigs on the place that are less than two weeks old.

One hundred and fifty-two head of light and medium weight pigs from last spring's crop were brought in from the stalk fields yesterday and put on a feeding floor where they will be given a full fattening ration.

Fed on Cement Platform.

Ground oats is kept before them at all times in self-feeders and they are given all the ear corn they will clean up morning and night. They are fed on a cement platform and have all the fresh water they will drink.

About one-third of this bunch is expected to be ready for market by Christmas. The others will be kept on full feed until they reach marketable weight.

The 80 brood sows that compose the breeding herd have been put in a feed lot with 60 Hereford steers that are being finished for market. The sows have access to corn stalk fields where they get exercise and pick up a little feed. They are given small amounts of ear corn night and morning.

MRS. THOMAS WHIFFEN, NOTED ACTRESS, DEAD

Roscoe, Va., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, affectionately known for the last two decades of her 91 years as "the grand old lady" of the American stage, died late yesterday at her picturesque mountain home two miles from Montvale.

The demure, little old woman, who kept herself perennially young through more than sixty years of stage work, had been ill for the last two years. Her condition was attributed indirectly to an attack of pneumonia she suffered in 1928 while playing in "Just Tally Ho" in Chicago. Although she continued on the stage for a time after that Chicago appearance before gradually consenting to retire, the aged actress' health started perceptible decline and never was good thereafter.

Last Appearance in 1932. Mrs. Whiffen's last public appearance was in 1932 when she left her home and came to Roscoe to take part in a radio production which was broadcast over a network.

During her long and colorful career Mrs. Whiffen played with nearly all the stage greats of her era. Among them were the Templetons, the Cushmans, the Drews, the Barrymores, and the Boucicauts. John Drew was her intimate friend and Edwin Booth and Lawrence Barrett were among her admirers.

She made her American debut the day after she landed in this country in 1868. Her first appearance here was in New York with the Galton Opera company, which presented a series of one act musical plays by Offenbach.

Later she toured the country under the management of John Templeton, who first engaged her for the role of "Hazel Kirke" in "Emeralda," "The Rajah," "May Blossom," and "The Private Secretary." Under the management of Charles Frohman she was cast in several plays, among which were "Brother Officers" and "The Willmenses."

Then she played a season with Mary Manning and later opened with Margaret Anglin in "Zira," remaining with Miss Anglin and Henry Miller for some time.

She was with the company in which John Drew was starred in the revival of "Trelawney of the Wells," and which proved to be the final play for that famous actor. His death occurred while the company was on tour of the Pacific coast.

Mrs. Whiffen was born in London on March 12, 1845, as Blanche Galt.

MOTOR IGNITES OXYGEN TENT; PATIENT, 75, DIES

New York, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Fire caused by a short circuited motor fatally burned a 75 year old patient in an oxygen tent in Jewish hospital, Brooklyn, today.

The victim, Aaron Handler, a widower, was the father of a nurse on the hospital staff, Mrs. Rose Glazer, with whom he lived. He died two hours after the blaze swept his bed.

Handler, afflicted with a heart ailment, had been in the oxygen tent since Monday. An attendant was in the room, hospital officials said, when fire suddenly flashed through the tent. It flared through the patient's long whiskers and spread to the bedclothes before the attendant could bring an extinguisher into play.

CHILD FATALLY SCALDED BY HOME STEAM REMEDY

An unusual scalding accident caused the death yesterday of Anne Taft, 2 years old, and sent her brother, Donnie, 4, to the County hospital. The Taft home is at 4212 Ellis avenue.

The youngsters were suffering from colds yesterday, and their mother, Mrs. Anne Taft, kept them in bed. Hoping to cure their colds, she rigged up a steam tent over their bed.

Then she placed a pan of boiling water between the children. In some manner the pan overtopped, and spilled the hot water upon the tiny patients. They were taken to the County hospital, where Anne died a few hours later. Donnie is in a serious condition.

BARONTINTY DIES; SOUGHT A WORLD SCIENCE RETREAT

Pleaded Here 5 Years for His 'Dream.'

Baron Karl Ferdinand Tinty, who spent his last five years here in a vain search for a world science retreat, died yesterday at his home in Evanston, Ill., at the age of 45 years.

Baron Tinty died Wednesday night in the hospital, where he had been under treatment for a heart ailment since Aug. 1. He died virtually penniless, having exhausted his funds in behalf of his cause, and became dependent upon friends for the frequent hospital treatment his ailing heart required.

Ideal Found Support. Some of the Baron's friends believed his plan for an international seat of culture in the old castle merely the fanciful wanderings of a romantic mind, but others supported his ideal. He appealed to educators throughout the country for his plan, and won endorsements from a number of leaders in academic and other fields. He was the father of a nurse on the hospital staff, Mrs. Rose Glazer, with whom he lived. He died two hours after the blaze swept his bed.

Despite the severity of his wound, he walked half a mile to his house and told his wife, the former Mrs. Evelyn Hall Pierce, to take him to a hospital at Abington.

MOVE TO COLLECT EMPLOYERS' NEW PAY ROLL TAXES

1 Pct. Levy for Jobless
Due in January.

With an estimated 1,600,000 employed application forms for old age benefits distributed in Illinois, preparations are going forward rapidly to collect the pay roll taxes called for by the federal social security act, it was learned yesterday. Under Philip Godfrey, the social security division of the bureau of internal revenue shortly will mail 160,000 tax returns blanks to employers.

The blanks will call for information relative to the 1 per cent tax on employers for unemployment compensation, effective last Jan. 1, which is payable by Jan. 31, 1937, and quarterly thereafter. Employers will also be required to report on the old age benefits tax of 2 per cent on pay rolls, shared equally by employers and employees, which takes effect Jan. 1, 1937. This tax is payable by Feb. 28, and monthly after that date.

Arrange Quarters for Stat. Mr. Godfrey's staff will soon occupy the south wing on the fifth floor of the United States courthouse. The space will be vacated tomorrow by the field collector for the bureau of internal revenue, who is to move to 111 West Jackson boulevard.

Meanwhile, the first 5,000 "account numbers" were in the mails for workers who were the first to return their applications for old age benefits. The bits of cardboard, bearing numbers beginning with 318-01-0001, will be distributed to all of the 850,000 eligible Chicago workers within the next two weeks. The deadline on employer applications is Dec. 5.

Nearly all of the 135,000 forms sent to Chicago employers, requiring data as to the number of workers, have been returned to the postoffice. An official there said that employers who had returned the forms after the deadline of Nov. 23 would not be penalized, although Washington officials have refused to make a statement on this effect.

ILLINOIS TO DELAY ACTION

State Senator Harold G. Ward, majority leader of the upper chamber of the Illinois general assembly, predicted yesterday that legislative action on unemployment insurance will be deferred until the regular session which meets next January.

He and other leaders said the effort of the federal social security board to compel action by the 32 states which have not passed laws to bring them under the full terms of the unemployment insurance provisions of the social security act will have no effect in Illinois. It was said that the assembly understood the situation clearly when it permitted bills on this subject to die in the second special session last February and that there has been no change since that time.

Objections Voiced Again. Opponents of the unemployment insurance proposal, which was up last winter, indicated they would battle it as vigorously as ever if it were introduced in the legislature again.

As one of the chief spokesmen for the opponents, James L. Donnelly,

NEEDY FAMILIES MOVE OUT OF PROVISIO WHEN RELIEF PAY IS CUT OFF

A migration of relief families has begun from Proviso township, where taxpayers last month refused to approve a levy on real estate for relief purposes, thus cutting off state aid. This was learned yesterday from Township Supervisor John G. Carson of Melrose Park, who estimated that at least fifty families have already moved away in search of relief.

Chicago and other relief units have rules requiring at least a month's local residence before relief is given, but Carson said that destitute families would probably be aided temporarily anyway.

Thirty Maywood families formerly on the relief rolls of the township were found by a citizens' committee to be in no need of public assistance, Curt O. Krausser, president of the village, announced. Eighty other families, most of them unemployed, require relief, he said, although only twenty-two of these need immediate help. The committee reported that a dozen of the families were operating automobiles.

executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, gave specific reasons for continued opposition.

"Irrespective of any question that may exist regarding the desirability of legislation of this general character," he said, "it seems entirely clear to us that enactment of so-called unemployment insurance in Illinois should be delayed until there is a determination by the Supreme court of the United States of the constitutionality of the unemployment insurance provisions of the federal social security act."

The decision handed down by the Supreme court on Monday upholding the decision of the New York court of appeals upon the New York unemployment insurance act did not, in the opinion of our counsel, include a determination of the principal legal questions involved in the unemployment insurance provisions of the federal social security act."

Government to Keep Taxes.

Under terms of the unemployment insurance section of the social security act, the federal government will collect for the present calendar year 1 per cent of the pay rolls of employers, of which it will return 90 per cent to state unemployment insurance funds in those states which have approved legislation in force.

The 32 states having no such legislation, including Illinois, must either put such legislation into effect before Jan. 1 or permit the federal government to collect and keep the taxes, estimated at $100,000,000, unless congress is persuaded when it meets in January to pass retroactive legislation authorizing refunds.

Other sections of the social security act provide for old age pensions, based on further pay roll taxes, and old age assistance.

Employees' Contributions

Increase Community Fund

A contribution of $37,000 from the employees of the Western Electric company was announced yesterday by James B. Forgan, general chairman of the Community Fund campaign. Previously the company had pledged a $40,000 gift. The employees of the Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing company subscribed $3,472 and the Western Union Employees' association, $1,000. The Community Fund campaign objective is $3,400,000. The drive closes Dec. 10.

FINISH 13 PWA STATE MEDICAL PROJECTS OF 27

Of the twenty-seven medical and hospital projects started in Illinois with the aid of federal funds, thirteen have been completed. This was reported yesterday by David R. Kennel, acting state director of the Public Works administration. The projects are being built at a total cost of nearly $18,000,000, of which the government has supplied $9,043,000 in FWA loans and grants.

In Chicago four medical projects are nearing completion. They are the University of Illinois medical and dental laboratory, a combination laundry-lounge for the Industrial School for the Blind, a new administration building for the Chicago State hospital (Dunning), and an addition to the State Research and Education Hospital for Crippled Children.

The new Cook County Nurses' home was completed a year ago at a cost of more than $2,000,000.

CANADIAN COURT UPHOLDS WILL OF AMBROSE SMALL

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 26.—(P)—Action to upset the probated wills of Ambrose Small, millionaire theater owner who disappeared in 1919, and his widow, Mrs. Theresa Small, was dismissed in Supreme court today after an eight day trial.

Justice Nicol Jeffrey described as "incredible" the case made out by witnesses for Mary Florence Small, sister of the theater magnate, who tried to overthrow the wills which involved a $3,000,000 estate. In an oral judgment he asserted the purported murder confession of Mrs. Small was an "unquestioned forgery."

Miss Small had sought to prove that the theater owner's will made in 1903 was forged; that Mrs. Small had written a confession in 1929, ten years after Small disappeared, holding herself responsible for his death, and that the sisters of Small, Mary Florence and Gertrude, were entitled to the estate.

Under Mrs. Small's will most of the estate had been bequeathed to Roman Catholic organizations here. Had the action been successful, Miss Small and her sisters would have obtained a large part of the fortune.

What could be a happier gift?

A Schick Shaver brings more comfort and pleasure into a man's personal life than any other single possession

Quick, close shaves every day, with never a cut nor a scrape, make him forget the nuisance shaving used to be. The genuine pleasure of shaving with the Schick increases each day. Such a gift carries with it years of kindly remembrance for the one who gave it.

Keep the face young-looking

A man who has shaved with lather and blades develops a hard, calloused skin. As he uses the Schick, Nature discards the old skin which flakes off in a few weeks leaving a softer, more youthful skin. This penetrates deeper into the shaving slots and permits the Schick to give you a perfect shave. There is no danger of infection with the Schick. Doctors recommend it especially to sufferers from skin troubles.

Why it shaves close

The extremely thin flat plate of the Schick nestles into the skin, pressing down the tiny mounds. The inner cutter shears off the hairs below the normal level of the mounds.

No moving part touches the skin so it is impossible to cut or hurt. The thinness and more particularly the flatness of the Schick shearing head is responsible for the close shave it gives.

The entire action of the Schick is as gentle as massaging your face with your fingertips.

Saves its cost

There are no blades to buy, sharpen or renew, nor do you use brush, cream or lotions. So the Schick pays for itself over and over again. Shavers we sold nearly five years ago are still giving their owners quick, clean shaves with no signs of wearing out.

Buy Christmas shavers now

In the rush of near-Christmas buying, your dealers may be out of stock. Be sure you have the gift shavers you want by buying now. Any Schick dealer will demonstrate the shaver to you.

Schick Shavers, sold by authorized dealers, have a registration number on the motor cap, corresponding with the number on a registration card which accompanies every shaver. Be sure you get the registration card and return it to us. Otherwise our guarantee is not effective. Shavers with numbers erased are not guaranteed and therefore not subject to service.

Spanking Poor Way to Make Child Obedient

Parent's Motive May Be an Unjust One.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
"My dear Mrs. Bevans: Please send me your booklet on 'Side Lights on Stubbornness' in children; also anything else you have which will help me to combat the obsolete 'spare the rod' etc. barbarism indulged in by an otherwise intelligent, conscientious, and well meaning stepmother, at the expense of a dear boy of 11, whom she misunderstands."
"I am sure that an article on the subject would interest many of your readers, even in this day and age!"
So writes a man.
I know it's true, yet I have to be reminded periodically of the fact that some people still believe in spanking and beating children to gain their obedience, or, we might say, their subservience. I don't see much of this myself, but I read of it often in my correspondence.

Because the motives for spanking a child vary, this problem isn't as simple as it might seem on the surface. There are people who honestly believe that sparing the rod does spoil the child. They spank when their cool judgment tells them it is necessary to do so. And there are parents who spank in a moment of anger, but who are usually sorry they did it afterward. And there are those who believe in spanking only for the small child who, they say, is too little to understand other sorts of guidance. These are all fairly simple, direct motives for spanking children.

But there are other motives which quite often manifest themselves in more frequent and more severe physical chastising, such as whipping and beating. These are more complex and can often be traced to a buried personality difficulty in the grown person dealing with the child.

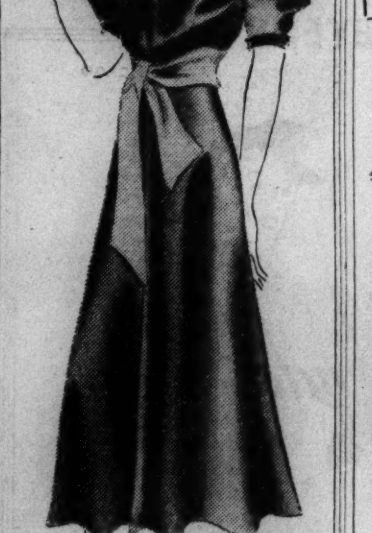

Those who fall into the first group of spankers—those with simple motives—usually can be reasoned out of this form of management by convincing them of two things: one, its tendency to destroy a nice relationship; the other, its utter futility. To back up this "futility" argument, I have their own letters: "I spank and spank, but it does no good."

As for those with more complex motives, well, perhaps this airing of possible personal conflicts, will lead them into a little self-examination which may result in a sincere desire to feel and act differently. It would bring happiness to them as well as to their children.

Tunic Flatters Heavy Figure

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Couturiers had a bright idea when they designed and perpetuated the tunic, because the mode is particularly perfect for heavier silhouettes. The model presented today has other flattering details, too, and is a charming frock for all types of informal daytime wear. The traditional vestee, always appropriate for the plump figure, is modified in this model. Notice that it has a tiny rolled edge at the neckline, into which the body of the vestee is softly gathered. Revers are present, too, and also are softly rolled. The sleeves are puffed, but not too much so. They derive their fullness from a couple of clever peaks. The tunic skirt is flared sufficiently to be interesting, and the underskirt is beautifully simple.

Without the embroidery this model is decidedly smart, and with the embroidery, or ready-made braid, it is exceptionally chic. The original of this frock is fashioned of black crepe, with the vestee in royal blue. Your favorite color combination is "tops" for this model, and any of the popular fabrics will do nicely. The tunic pattern may be used for an entire frock, as shown, or be employed for separate blouses and skirts.

Style No. 3050 is designed for sizes 16 and 18, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 5 1/2 yards of 39 inch material, with 1/4 yard of 27 inch contrasting for the vestee.

The embroidery pattern, No. 717, costs 10 cents extra.

Girl's Catty to Take Homely Chum on Dates

Should Bring Pretty One for Beau's Friend.

BY DORIS BLAKE.
When you're making up a foursome, girls, you'd better bring on your most attractive girl acquaintances, not your homeliest. We recently received a report on the fatality resulting from this sort of bad management. A bad evening was had by all and there hasn't been a repeat invitation, girl No. 1 hearing that she can't be depended upon to bring in a suitable second girl.

The plain girl always is told to bask in the shadow of a popular sister if she can manage it, depending upon the reflected glory to serve her ends best. It's a weakness among the sex not to want to introduce into one's own circle of beaux a girl who just might outdo one at her own game. But it appears that it is the wiser thing to do now. If you load a "heavy" onto your beau's man friend, your beau takes affront along with him. But if you introduce one with all the earmarks of a success into the foursome, a better all 'round time is promised.

The business of not liking other girls, or being like by girls, doesn't go over well these days with the other sex. Men aren't so apt to think that the poor abused one is a victim of her sister's jealousy, as we are led to believe they once thought. They wonder and ask what's the matter with a girl that other attractive girls don't like. That's because there are so many good sports and square shooting girls willing to assist an attractive friend. In other words, women have raised this standard among themselves and men recognize it for what it is.

Another factor enters, of course. The smart girl doesn't try to "hog" every man that comes along. (Copyright, 1936: By The Chicago Tribune N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.)

Who Was the Mary Who Had a Lamb?

Controversy Arises
Manchester, N. H., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Mary's immortal school going lamb may become the center of a literary controversy just as soon as the New Hampshire Guide, now being prepared by WPA federal writers' project, comes off the press.

For the Guide will attest that Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale, native of New-Port, N. H., and not Mrs. Mary Sawyer of Somerville, Mass., was responsible for the nursery rhyme, "Mary had a little lamb."

In support of their contention, the WPA writers identify the very schoolhouse to which, the rhyme asserts, the lamb followed Mary. Henry Ford is a principal supporter of the Mrs. Sawyer version.

Back in 1878 Mrs. Sawyer claimed she was the original Mary and that a 12 year old boy, John Roulstone of Sterling, Mass., penned the first two lines of the poem. Ford purchased the schoolhouse.

The WPA literary sleuths claim Mrs. Hale, later editor of Lady's Magazine, and cofounder of Godey's Lady's Book, coeditor of Vassar college, and a leading promoter of Thanksgiving as a national holiday, wrote the jingle from her own personal experience, and that it was published in 1830, nearly fifty years before Mrs. Sawyer made her claim.

Schelling Has Three Roles at Stock Concert

BY EDWARD BARRY.
Young Ernest Schelling celebrated his 60th birthday recently but was too busy, probably, with his many interests even to notice the anniversary, much less to allow it to interfere with his vigor. The tall, black haired musician, who has been a figure of the tone world for half a century now, appeared as pianist, composer, and conductor last night at the seventh of the Chicago Symphony orchestra's Thursday concerts.

In his "Impressions from an Artist's Life" Mr. Schelling played the piano part, with Frederick Stock conducting. His work at the solo instrument had brilliance and incisiveness, with occasional poetic episodes, and quite won the approval of a wide awake Thanksgiving night audience.

With the music itself one can legitimately find occasional fault, for its glitter and originality are sometimes offset by its simple failure to sound well. There is too much sharpness and emphasis to the treatment of certain of the more rhythmic variations. And some individual instruments of the modern orchestra have tone colorings which are likely to clash when they are not softened by the great neutral backdrop of massed strings.

But much of this work classifies as "program" music, a type of art to which certain privileges must be extended in the interest of vividness. And yet, a sizable fraction of the world denies that the sheer tonal beauty of music can ever be secondary in importance to its meaning.

Mr. Schelling conducted his own Suite Varié, which is announced in the program notes as a revision and orchestration of an earlier divertimento for strings and piano. Its instrumentation is opulent and extremely clever. There are passages which defy an attempt by the ear to analyze the orchestration into its component parts.

The "Erebus pour un Enfant Malade" has especial musical interest, boasting a highly original melody clothed in orchestral dress of great beauty and fitness. The suite as a whole should be worth a considerable number of rehearsals as its interest, even on a first contact, is of no ordinary kind.

Mr. Stock began the evening with a splendid performance of the Beethoven Fourth Symphony. The orchestra's string tone, which has been cheered so often in this column, was at its lucient best during the magical Adagio.

This symphony is a great deal harder to perform well than the towering Third or Fifth. From first bar to last its light touch must be preserved. Yet the themes must be sung with sufficient richness or the shadow of pedantry will fall across the symphony's sunny measures.

Bernard Fay of the College of France of Paris, will speak at the Salon Francaise of the Chicago Woman's club at 11 o'clock this morning

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

MINIMUM BIDDABLE SUITS.
With rare exceptions a player should not make a free bid in any suit weaker than four cards headed by the jack and at least one higher honor. Minimum: Q J 3 2, K J 3 2, A J 3 2, etc. Five cards, headed by the jack for any higher honor. Minimum: J 5 4 3 2, Q 5 4 3 2, K 5 4 3 2, etc.

These suits are biddable only once. Having made one bid with such a suit, a player should not bid it again unless partner has raised, showing strength in the suit.

A four card length should not be bid a second time, even when partner has raised it, unless there is no other rebid available. Partner's raise may have been given with only a three card trump holding, such as Q 8 4, and it is seldom desirable to play a hand with a trump suit in which you hold only seven trumps to the opponents' six. With one more trump in the combined hands of declarer and dummy the advantage is eight to the opponents' five, which is a safe margin of superiority.

Get Warmth, but No Bulk in Ski Clothes

Special Fabrics Insure Style and Comfort.

BY RHEA SEEGER.
Current showings of ski clothes assure aesthetic enthusiasts of the sport that dressing properly and warmly doesn't mean distressing layers of bulk. Correct ski apparel assures freedom, and soul satisfyingly slim streamlines, a trick achieved with materials that are warm and water-repellent, but not thick and boardy. The tricotlike fabrics are sturdy and warm and anything but stiff. Latex insets at the belt line and wrists, together with ingenious yokes, inverted back pleats, and back sections that are cleverly full, and fitted into a smooth belt yoke preclude any unsightly bulging anywhere.

Trousers are fitted and made with just the right fullness at the knees and are pulled in at the ankles with ribbing and then fitted with an elastic band to wear under the foot. Ski shoes should be fitted more carefully than the clothes, and roomy enough to accommodate a couple of pairs of socks if necessary. Socks, mittens, scarf, and cap are accessories that are designed for warmth and decoration, with the stunning white hand knitted socks, with gaily patterned turn back cuffs, made by Swedish women, the big favorites. Caps are small and all of them have visors.

Beginners shudder in anticipation of wind and weather and much snow, but listen to the experts. You don't need layers and layers. What with all the climbing, the ups and the unusual exercise, you have no trouble keeping warm. Leather jackets, or new wool jackets, plus under sweater or waistcoat of wool keep you snug and warm. And for underwear, some bright young person tried out those world famous one piece thin wool sleeping pajamas, and this stunt has now received official O. K.

Fashion photograph. . . A famous Swiss designed this regulation ski outfit. Dark blue trousers, with buttoned hip pockets. Swedish hand knitted socks of white with turn-over decorative cuffs. Ski shoes fitted for warmth and comfort. Light colored jacket of water repellent fabric. A matching small visored cap. Scarf and mittens in colors to contrast.

Declarer ruffed and now did just what misguided East had foolishly intended to do. He ruffed a club in the dummy, thereby giving East the opportunity to overruff, if he could. Because the declarer could see, of course, that the only thing with which East could overruff was the ace of trumps, and he had little fear that that card was in East's hand. The Good Morning!

This campus musical farce with its typical football slant, and not a lick of sense, is wallowing good fun. The excitement circles round a mistaken invitation. I. E. Yale's publicity director invites the WRONG Texas team to the bowl for a game! You see, there are two Texas schools. One's big stuff. The other—tanktown material. And Tanktown—erroneously—gets the bid!

Texas State's new coach (Jack Haley), completely under the domination of his wife (Patsy Kelly), naively believes the honor due to the fact of his coming. Yale must have heard about him. And so, to a crazy, merry, exciting finish—a wild game played in a blinding snowstorm. Stuart Erwin is ingratiating as a barefoot boy from the melon patches who can throw a melon fifty yards into a basket, PROVIDED his naked toes are permitted to clutch the good earth. He is commended to fill the place of the Texas full back whose leg Miss Kelly breaks earlier in the action.

Speaking of Miss Kelly—whom I usually like—I didn't this trip. As Mrs. Winters she's just TOO plain common.

The Yacht Club Boys, gone collegiate, are here, there, and everywhere; Dixie Dunbar and Anthony Martin dance and sing. Judy Garland, woman country looking little piece with freckles and a Huckleberry Finn grin, also dances and sings. Arlene Judge vamps naughtily until Miss Kelly, tearing the utter disruption of Mr. Erwin, cramps her style.

Other players satisfy—and the director handled his goofy material in neat, experienced fashion. If you like to laugh and aren't too fussy over what you laugh at, why "Pigskin Parade" should make the grade with you.

Front Views and Profiles By June Provinces

A YOUNG lad who sometimes attends junior dancing festivities was asked by his mother how he selects his dancing partners. He was evasive, and determined to wrest some information from him, the mother continued with "Well, I suppose you're like all the men and dance with only the prettiest girls."

"I certainly do not," countered the boy, "I dance with the dumbest ones."

"But why? Because you feel sorry for them?" his mother inquired.

"No," with irritation in his tone, "because they're the only ones who'll laugh at my jokes."

MRS. RICHARD GAMBEILL, one of the Junior League's best character actresses, plays the part of Muff Potter, the old drunk who takes the boys fishing, in "Tom Sawyer," and some care was taken to have her makeup properly disreputable. She wears a shaggy mustache and a battered hat and worn clothing. So a few mornings ago when Mrs. Robert White, associate director, was calling together the actors for rehearsal and saw such a figure going down the back stage steps she called "Helen! Helen! Places!" The person she had been pursuing turned about with slow dignity and said, "If you're calling me, my name ain't Helen." Then, resuming his janitor work, he added ruminatively, "Dames is sure screwy nowadays."

I DON'T know what this proves exactly, unless it's that boys have a great deal on their minds. When the Fathers' club of Loyola academy mails out notices for meetings each student addresses the envelope to "Dad. The last time this was done sixteen notices were returned to the academy marked "Wrong Address." When one of the professors asked several of the boys about it the answer was, "O, I forgot. We moved."

CHANGING world note: A teacher in Manley High school had occasion to send a notice of a student's absence from classes to his parent. The reply she received to her note was, "Sorry to say that I did not know Edward was not in school. Also he won't let me say anything to him, so will have to let the school take care of him."

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Hey there, gentlemen—and ladies, too! Our text for the day concerns a new scalp stimulator you should know about if you're among the thousands who each day find themselves with an increasingly scanty crown of glory.

This is not a hair brush. It's a massage device, almost completely handmade, of specially treated rubber. The back and handle, more or less on hair brush design, are of hard rubber. The big feature, however, is the long "bristles" of softer rubber, each with a rounded metal tip. Use it to revitalize circulation, remove dandruff, loosen the scalp and in general to woo renewal of scalp health and hair abundance. The "bristles" do a magnificent job of exercising the scalp and of cleaning it—two features that are vitally important, especially the former.

Impaired circulation is the greatest contributing cause of hair difficulty. When you get right down to it very few of us keep our general circulation up to perfect pitch and not one in a thousand gives enough thought to the matter of scalp stimulation in particular.

Giving the head a lick and a promise with comb or brush just isn't enough. You've got to get right down to the root of all the hair evil, those sleepy cells that need a workout so badly but never, never get it. If we all exercised properly, ate properly, and dressed properly, the falling hair story might be a different one. But since none of us do as a rule an external aid to improvement is the only hope left, and this looks like an awfully good bet to us.

It's used as a brush would be, but only for a few minutes at a time. Use it twice a day every day—and the sluggish circulation that's the reason for your receding hairline or those distressing thin patches or the handful of hair you find every day will be completely dissipated.

The flat price of this hair life preserver won't strike you as low, but when you consider that it's practically a lifetime friend and that you can give yourself about a thousand good hair treatments a year with it you'll think it's cheap at triple the price.

Touch of Cold Is Signal for Florida Trips

Chicagoans Are Opening Homes There.

BY JUDITH CASS.
TOUCH of real winter weather already is sending southward some of the Chicagoans who have homes in Florida. Several families have waited to have Thanksgiving dinner with relatives here, and now they will leave for a warmer climate. Among them are the H. Stillson Harts, who had their family with them yesterday at Hartwood in Barrington, and today they will take the train for Palm Beach. They had a villa there last winter, and liked it so much that they decided to build, and Mrs. Hart has made several trips south earlier in the season to supervise the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Hart will be at a hotel temporarily while the house is being completed and so will the Junior John F. Jelkes, who also are building in Palm Beach. They are leaving tonight, too. The Joseph M. Cudahys opened their Palm Beach house last week, but they went to New York for Thanksgiving and will be back here today for a brief stay before returning south.

Our Palm Beach correspondent sends the news that Franklin P. Smith's villa there is being made ready for his occupancy and that the Henry G. Barkhausens' new villa in Middle Road is being opened this week. The A. Parker Bryants (Betty Bryant) have taken an apartment in Palm Beach for the winter. His parents, the Harold C. Bryants of England, have a beautiful winter home, Mon Tresor, at Lake Worth.

The Roderick W. McKinnons of Evanston have taken a house at Palm Beach for the season, but they will not go south until after Christmas. Among the early arrivals in Miami Beach are George E. Crandell and his bride, the former Emily McCormick Davies. The Valentines C. Bartletts already have gone to their new home at Hobe Sound for the winter.

The Mansfield Ralph Clearys of Highland Park are in Hobe Sound for their first visit to their new Spanish home on the island. Their sister, Mrs. Edward A. Roach, also of Highland Park, has joined them with a visit with her daughter, Miss Lorraine-Marie Roach, at Sarah Lawrence college. Miss Roach will be among next season's debutantes.

Helen Adair Orr Will Bow Today.

Mrs. Wheaton Augur, Mrs. Robert C. Orr, and Miss Ellen Adair Orr will receive their friends between 4 and 7 o'clock this afternoon in Mr. and Mrs. Orr's apartment at 1244 Stone street to mark Miss Orr's formal introduction into society.

The pretty brunette debutante is among the most fêted of the young women coming out this season. She was educated at the Girls' Latin school, and several of her school friends as well as others of the season's debutantes will be among her assistants this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Orr and the Gustavus F. Swifts will give a ball for their daughters, Miss Orr, and Miss Jane Swift, on Dec. 26 at the Blackstone hotel.

Extend Exhibition of Needlework Guild.

The Needlework and Textile guild has scored such a triumph with the annual exhibition of members' work that it has been decided to prolong the exhibit until Dec. 15. In a single week the attendance was 4,214.

Barbara Fortune Is Bride

MR. AND MRS. FRENCH STROTHER CARY, JR.

Teachers of English Urged to Encourage Natural Language

Boston, Mass., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Prof. Walter Barnes of New York university, speaking tonight at the opening of the 25th anniversary convention of the National Council of Teachers of English here, asked his listeners to consider well the desirability of a "sweet disorder" in speech which would permit and admit the propriety of slang and colloquialisms.

"We must define and teach a more natural, idiomatic, and comfortable mode of communication," said Prof. Barnes. "Most people, young and old, in the ordinary situations of life willingly employ this style, but they do not learn to use it effectively, with force and charm."

Prof. Barnes said teachers should give American youth "a pleasant conversational American vernacular—vigorous, picturesque, full blooded, folksy, racy, sinewy."

Too much emphasis has been put on systematic grammar, he said.

WEDDINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Adelbert Kline of New York and Chicago announce the marriage of their daughter, Elinor, to Vernon R. Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Reed of Chicago, on Oct. 31 at the First Methodist Episcopal church in Evanston. Announcement is made of the marriage of the bride's brother, Allen Paul Kline, and Miss Gwendolyn Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kidd Moore of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Allen of 2206 Orrington avenue announce the marriage yesterday of their daughter, Jane Holbrook, to James R. Floyd of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Home Ceremony

The living room of the John L. Fortunes' home in Astor street was decorated with lilies for the wedding of their youngest daughter, Miss Barbara Fortune, to French Strother Cary Jr. yesterday afternoon.

The young couple repeated their marriage vows before a large bay window which was screened with greens and flanked by tall candelabra and standards of lilies. Just relatives and a few close friends attended the wedding and the reception afterward.

The bride, who was unattended, was lovely in the gown of heavy white satin which her eldest sister, Mary, had worn at her wedding to William Lawlor Jr. three years ago. The bride carried lilies of the valley and gardenias. Dr. French Strother Cary was his son's best man.

After a wedding trip to Florida and Nassau, Mr. Cary and his bride will be at home in an apartment in Lake View avenue shortly before Christmas.

Former Consuelo Vanderbilt to Be Bride Today

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Earl E. T. Smith, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, will be married in a quiet ceremony on her father's yacht tomorrow, to Henry Gassaway Davis III, mining fortune heir, and former husband of her cousin, Grace Vanderbilt.

Mrs. Smith, the younger daughter of the late Mrs. Virginia Fair Vanderbilt, arrived several days ago from New York to spend Thanksgiving with her father, William K. Vanderbilt, on his 265 foot yacht which is tied up at his estate on Terminal Island. Her parents were divorced in 1927 in Paris.

Mr. Vanderbilt announced last night the engagement of his daughter to Davis, who is a grandson of the late Henry Gassaway Davis, former senator from West Virginia and Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1904.

Mrs. Smith and her sister, Mrs. Vanderbilt Phelps, whose two marriages have ended in divorce, were reared in the Catholic faith by their mother, who was a daughter of the late United States Senator James G. Fair of San Francisco.

Davis, who graduated from Princeton in 1924, eloped in 1927 with Grace Vanderbilt, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and married her in a civil ceremony witnessed by a policeman. They were divorced at Laramie, Wyo., last Aug. 22.

When Consuelo Vanderbilt married Smith at the Vanderbilt's New York home in 1926, the ceremony was performed by Father Thomas F. Murphy, who 37 years before had married her parents when he was an assistant priest at St. Patrick's cathedral in New York.

At the time of the Vanderbilt-Smith marriage, Father Murphy married the bride's sister, Muriel, and Frederic Cameron Church, according to the Roman Catholic ritual. The Churches had been married a year before in Newport, R. I.

The Smiths were divorced in Reno on Feb. 21, 1925, after having signed an agreement providing for the custody of their two children, Iris and Virginia.

It has been reported that Smith, the son of Mrs. Tiller Carpenter, would marry Muriel Richardson, daughter of the Courtland Richards, before the end of the Christmas holiday season.

H. B. Wagoner Catches Every Desert Mood

His Exhibit of Paintings Is Magnificent.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There is probably no more romantic place in the whole of the United States than the desert. One can hate the desert or love it; there seems to be nothing between the two extremes which does it justice, or does justice to the things it does to you.

The desert is a mixture of adventure, death, danger, aridity, and beauty. It shifts with every change of weather and its seasons are as variable as those which blow over the great waters. In fact, the desert is more closely akin to the sea than are the more fertile places of the earth.

All of which long preamble is by way of introducing the magnificent exhibition of desert paintings by Harry B. Wagoner in the Anderson galleries, 530 South Michigan avenue. Mr. Wagoner is a passionate lover of the desert. He lives with it, near it, or on it most of the year. With his trailer-studio he camps in the desert week after week painting its multitudinous faces.

Sometimes it is sunk in the lonely quiet of night, sometimes bathed in the gray chill of dawn, sometimes hot under a cloudless sky with a sun of magnified intensity burning the heart out of one, but whatever the mood the desert wishes to stir with, Mr. Wagoner is ready to catch it and transfer it upon his canvas.

Here in this exhibition is unrolled the whole gamut of emotion to which the desert is keyed. Wearing the purple plume of the smoke tree the desert stands sleekly beautiful; in the winter the smoke tree will be gray, but no less beautiful.

Carpeted with flowers, the desert lies here like a lazy cat, its claws withheld. Beyond is a more cruel desert, one with yellow sand, hard and dry, that flows back to foothills of blue stone. Over it hangs a distant sky, clear as a brook, void as an empty robin shell.

Then again there is the desert of the gray sand, sand that will sift through your fingers like silver or gold for which men have searched and died in search of. And then, once more, there is the desert of the palm and the giant cactus. There is the garden spot of the desert; there is the oasis.

All of this Mr. Wagoner has painted. His pictures are glorious. The exhibition will continue into December and no one who values beauty should miss it.

Avers Nose Is Key to Beauty

THE CRAWFORD NOSE. THE LOY NOSE.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 26.—(P)—And now comes George Folsie, ace movie cameraman, with a new theory of the keystone of feminine beauty.

"The nose is the thing," he said. After years of squinting through a lens at the reigning beauties of the movies, he concludes that a woman is beautiful or not according to the shape of her nose and the advantage she takes of it.

Myrna Loy and Joan Crawford, he said, have the most perfect noses in pictures.

"The nose determines the pattern for the whole face," Folsie explained. "It regulates the shape of the eyebrows, sets the eyes too far apart or too close together, and either hides or overexposes the curve of the lips."

"The whole trick—and one that has been mastered by most actresses who are considered beautiful—is to apply makeup in such a way as to create the illusion of having each feature in harmony with the nose."

Grace Moore Declares Diets Disrupt Homes

Says Undernourished Have Bad Nerves.

BY GEORGE SHAFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 26. (Special.)—Grace Moore, now filming "Interlude" at Columbia studio, doesn't look plump but she did take time to say: "Hollywood has a mania for keeping thin. I believe it is one reason for the number of divorces because it is responsible for so much family trouble. They diet here to the point of undernourishment and weakened physical and nervous systems. Everybody knows underfed people become irritable. The husband, being nearest to the woman, bears the brunt of it when she gets 'picky' about small things."

Miss Moore also said she believed "It is far better to carry five extra pounds and keep a husband than to lose the five pounds and lose him."

Monte Blue, who was a shining star in silent films, is playing the overbearing villain in a serial at Universal, "Secret Agent X-9." The villainess is Lynn Gilbert, a movie newcomer from Chicago.

Director Jimmy Hogan wanted to get one Irishman in the cast of "Bulldog Drummond Comes Back" because so many English players had been assembled for him by the casting department. Accordingly Jimmy chose Actor Patrick Kelly for one of the important roles. When Kelly showed up on the set he talked with a decided English accent and informed Hogan he had been born in London of English parents.

Pete Smith is to do the talking for an unusual two reeler at Metro titled "Radium." According to the studio announcement the script for this is "based on records and findings of Dr. Luther S. Gable of Chicago." It tells about the discovery of radium and of efforts to learn how to use it in treating human ills. Jacques Tourneur directs.

Everytime Allan Davis signs to direct a film he sends his wife out of town. He says it "saves wear and

A FRIEND IN NEED

Young Mother Asks for Clothes.
"Dear Miss Brown: I am writing to ask your help. I am a young mother with two children, expecting a third. My husband is working on a WPA job and earning $55 per month. Before he received this job we were on relief for several months, and during that time we received only food from the organization. We all are in need of winter clothing, especially my husband, who has to be outdoors all day. It is hard to buy clothing on his salary because we are trying to square up some of our debts, money borrowed before we went on relief."

My husband wears size 38, shoes size 7. My daughter is 6 years old, but wears size 10 in clothing. I need a coat, size 16.—Mrs. H. O. Mrs. O. resides on the near north side.

tear on both our nervous systems." He's directing Michael Whalen and Rochelle Hudson in "Peach Edition" at Twentieth Century, and he was so insistent on getting a good start at the story that he bought plane tickets for Mrs. Dwan to fly to New York, from where she took passage to Europe.

Doris Nolan, new, pretty, talented young star at Universal, had to learn to sing for some coming pictures and engaged a Norwegian teacher. After a couple of days, during which she thought she was getting along, the teacher said here, "You've got to do roadwork to strengthen your vocal cords." So she has been running a couple of miles each morning before breakfast. She also must take a cold shower after the run, also to strengthen her voice. "I really believe my voice is strengthening," she 20 year old blonde player said smiling, "but I feel positive I am developing my legs."

What began as an exploitation stunt may not be Paramount's cash return. The stunt was to use some of the footage of C. B. De Mille's recently completed "The Plainsman" and augment it with background and educational shots of the prairie regions to complete a short reel film depicting the peopling and development of the country's great plains.

When the "short" was completed a firm stepped in and asked rights to sell it for showing in schools. Now the same arrangement has been made with a second exploitation short reel of left over pieces and interesting geographical shots from Paramount's "Maid of Salem." This is intended to give school children a clear idea of the hardships and stamina of the American Puritans.

Two from Honolulu social circles are here making a start in motion pictures. One is Richard Palmer Smart, sugar plantation scion, in "The Road Back" at Universal. The other is Mrs. Frances Beamer, technical director for Bing Crosby in "Walkie Wedding" at Paramount. Francine Larrimore will go to London after the Christmas holidays, not to make a picture but to watch King Edward's coronation. She has just completed her first movie, "John Meade's Woman."

Detroit Line Checks Chicago Attack.

Defeat No. 2

CHICAGO 17. DETROIT 13. (Special.)—The Chicago Bears today defeated the Detroit Lions 13 to 7 in a game that was a real battle of attrition. The Bears, who were looking for a second straight victory, won the game in a hard-fought battle that lasted 90 minutes. The Lions, who were looking for a third straight victory, were defeated in a game that was a real battle of attrition. The Bears, who were looking for a second straight victory, won the game in a hard-fought battle that lasted 90 minutes. The Lions, who were looking for a third straight victory, were defeated in a game that was a real battle of attrition.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Detroit, Mich., Nov. 26.—Five mammoth Detroit line men made a playing field of the mighty Chicago Bears today, and when, at the end of 60 minutes of fierce play, they topped off the field, the Lions had achieved a 13 to 7 victory in one of the outstanding front reversals of the National Professional Football league season.

For more than two hours tackles George Christensen and Jack Johnson, Guards Sam Knox and Joe Kopcha and Center Clarence Randolph stood off the assaults of one of the National league's most punishing offenses, yielding not an inch when an inch was important to the Bears in their futile fight to remain in a tie with Green Bay for the western division lead.

With them in their iron man feat was Frank Christensen, who led the way for ball carriers through gapping holes in the Bear line as the Lions piled up 361 yards by rushing and sent Ace Gutowsky and Dutch Clark over for touchdowns.

Bears Are Powerless.
The Bears were powerless before the force charge of the Lion forwards and backs, and their own offense, the leading ground gaining attack in the National league, cracked up against the Detroit line, where from tackle to tackle there was not one substitution.

It was evident as early as the fourth minute of the opening quarter that the Bears were waging a losing fight when the Lions, after stopping one of the Bears' two threats, marched 81 yards in 13 plays and sent Gutowsky over from the one foot line.

Gutowsky's touchdown gave the Lions a 6 to 0 lead at the half, which prevailed until Dutch Clark broke off the Bears' right tackle, shook off half a dozen defenders and ran 51 yards for a touchdown, winding up with a convoy of five teammates.

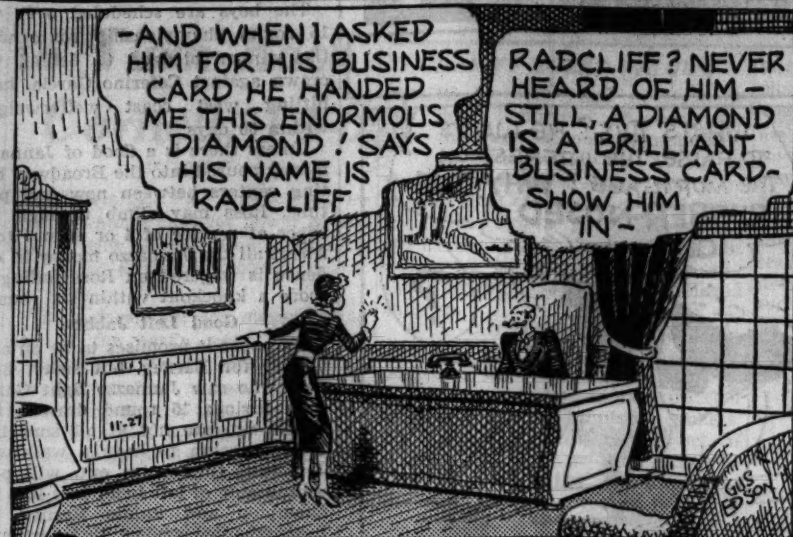

Miller Scores After Fumble.
The score hardly indicates the extent of the Lions' superiority on this day. The Chicago touchdown came in the fourth quarter when Center Ockie Miller ran 66 yards for a touchdown with one of the Lions' six fumbles. Joe Stydahar kicked the extra point.

Only sixteen Lions participated in the game which attracted an overflow crowd of 22,000 to the University of Detroit stadium, and of the five substitutes, two—like Peterson, who relieved Ernie Caddell, and Glenn Presnell, who replaced Caddell in the second quarter to make an unsuccessful attempt at field goal from the 18 yard line—played only a few minutes.

The Bears' two threats came in the first half. The first one, resulting from Ray Nolting's 10 and 47 yard runs on successive plays, broke up when Kopcha, a former Bear, intercepted Masterson's fourth down toss over the goal line.

The second cracked up on the last play of the second quarter when at the end of a 72 yard march the Bears again resorted to passes and the third one, coming on fourth down on the 8 yard line, was intercepted by Frank Christensen.

Manders Ejected from Game.
Jack Manders, who was ejected from the game in the second quarter, attempted a 32 yard place kick from his own 48 yard line. The attempt was a trifle too ambitious and the ball landed on the goal line beneath the cross bar for a touchback. Thereafter the Bears were held back from scoring territory while Caddell and Gutowsky ripped up and down the field on runners and reverse plays.

N. Y. U. PASS AND END RUN UPSET FORDHAM, 7-6

Rams Recover Fumble, March 70 Yards.

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The Long and sometimes slender back from Ohio State and a 60 to 0 defeat in the first game of the season led to the New York University team tonight at the Yankee stadium. The score read New York university, 7; Fordham, 6.

All of the scoring came in the second period, after New York had made its touchdown and Sam Somma's extra point. Fordham came back with its touchdown in a brilliant display of open football. Backed against their own goal, the Rams grabbed a fumbled punt on their own 30 yard line and yard line. The Fordham line held twice. Bloom faked a plunge and then lateraled to Savarese who went around his own right end for the touchdown. Somma's kick was good.

Kick Goes Out on 5 Yard Line.
Dunne opened the way for N. Y. U.'s touchdown after one of his kicks traveled 40 yards and rolled out on the Fordham 5 yard line. Quarterback Andy Palau kicked from behind his goal line and Savarese returned the punt 10 yards to the Fordham 35 yard line. A mixed attack featured by a pass from Bloom to Savarese for 12 yards put the ball on the Fordham 25 yard line. The Fordham line held twice. Bloom faked a plunge and then lateraled to Savarese who went around his own right end for the touchdown. Somma's kick was good.

COLGATE BEATS BROWN, 28 TO 0.
Providence, R. I., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Colgate overwhelmed Brown today, 28 to 0, to end the season for the two universities. It was Colgate's eighth straight victory over Brown. Four of the five Colgate touchdowns were made on running plays, mixed with forward passes. Eddie Lalor, full back, scored three of the touchdowns, two on line bucks and the other on a pass.

RUTGERS, WESLEYAN TIE.
New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Rutgers, scoring its first touchdown since the opening game of the season, today played a 7 to 7 tie with Ohio Wesleyan. Manfredi, Rutgers substitute, recovered a fumble on the kickoff and ran 27 yards to the yard line. Rutgers then put the ball over in two plunges.

BUCKNELL TIES TEMPLE.
Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—A scrappy Bucknell football team, aided by Bill Lane's long punts, held Temple to a scoreless tie today in their annual Thanksgiving clash to leave Temple's veteran coach, Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, still one game shy of his 200th victory in 41 years of coaching.

A crowd of 12,000, which sat through an intermittent snowfall, saw Bucknell turn back Temple's best scoring threat on the one yard line in the second period, then take to the air in the last period to reach the Temple 20 yard line before a pass interception halted the drive. Lane's remarkable kicking pulled Bucknell through several trying situations. His punts averaged 45 yards and his best effort, a 90 yard kick with the wind at his back early in the last period, paved the way for a winning threat.

Long Football Reign Seen for Minnesota, Ohio State

[This is the third of a series of articles on the commercial end of college football, problems connected with proselytizing, and subsidizing, scholastic requirements in midwestern universities, and other angles of the game.]

BY WILFRID SMITH.
Minnesota and Ohio State, with an occasional challenge from Northwestern, Purdue, and Indiana, will continue to dominate Western conference football. Chicago definitely has been outclassed, but the Maroons, at least, were pioneers of big football. Michigan will try to come back. But if the Wolverines do come back it will require concerted action to muster material which can pass the entrance examinations and then stay eligible.

There are other reasons why Iowa, Illinois, and Wisconsin have not challenged the leaders in recent years. All are explained by the advantages inherent to Minnesota and Ohio State. No Big Ten university is easier to enter than these, although requirements at other state supported institutions are no higher. Ohio State is the natural center for a large territory in which high school football produces fine teams. Michigan occasionally dips into northern Ohio.

FENWICK DRILLS, AUSTIN RESTS AS BIG GAME NEARS

Prep Elevens Approach Peak for Title Clash.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
Fenwick's Friars, who are determined to show 70,000 spectators at Soldier's field tomorrow just what it takes to beat Austin's Public High School league champs, had to wait till late afternoon yesterday for their turkey dinners. Coach Tony Lawless had the lads out at 2 o'clock, and for an hour and a half put them through a rigorous drill. This program, of course, meant that the heavy victuals had to wait.

Austin did not work out. Coach Bill Heiland excused his protégés, but warned them there will be plenty of bearing down in a final practice this afternoon. And while Austin is working hard this afternoon the Fenwick lads did not work out.

The Austin players also received their special uniforms, flashy maroon and white creations, but the time of the dress rehearsal has not been announced. Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit committee, headed by Mayor Edward J. Kelly, expects a boom in ticket sales today after the holiday lull. More than $87,000 worth of tickets have been sold, and the committee, with a break in weather, expects no difficulty in reaching a goal of $100,000. However, if not another of the 25,000 tickets remaining unsold is disposed of, the total now is $5,000 more than last year's sum and $53,000 more than the total in 1934, the first year the all-Chicago prep championship game was sponsored by the mayor's committee.

3,000 Student Tickets.
Of the 25,000 unsold tickets, 3,000 are student tickets. Those still unsold today will be placed on sale at Soldier's field at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Since no seats are reserved, those who buy tomorrow morning have shots at the best locations, the whole matter being a first come first served proposition. Mr. Wilfrid Smith, as you know, is writing a fine series in this paper, telling all about how young men are interested in the fine courses offered in universities which, incidentally, try to keep up pretty good football teams. We asked Mr. Smith for an estimate on the number of Big Ten coxswains entering the annual regatta which is being held at Soldier's field tomorrow with lasso, but Mr. Smith just snubbed us.

Seventeen to Depart.
The reason we made the crack about the lassos was because seventeen of the twenty-two sprightly youths who are slated to start the game tomorrow at 1:30 o'clock are prospects for big league competition in 1938.

Seven of Austin's regular players will end their prep football careers. They are: Bill Carlstrom and Roy Schwerdtman, guards; Capt. George Maggos, tackle; Bud Cervin, end; Gene Dennis, quarter back; Jim Bronk, full back, and Al Alop, half back.

Huffman Named Indiana's Most Valuable Player

Honor List

PLAYERS named by their teammates as candidates for the Tribune's annual silver football trophy, to be awarded to the most valuable player in the Western conference, follow:

Vernon Huffman, Indiana.
Matt Patanelli, Michigan.
John Drake, Purdue.
Cliff Kahn, Illinois.
Edwin Widath, Minnesota.

Huffman played in every game of the current season, which saw VERNON HUFFMAN, the Hoosiers wind up in a tie for third position in the Big Ten. He handled sweetly all the passing and most of the punting duties, in addition to being the leading ball carrier on the squad.

Rated one of the best passers in the conference, Huffman completed 45 of 114 passes for a gain of 703 yards. Against Nebraska he passed 56 yards for a touchdown. His 21 yard touchdown pass in the Iowa game was a factor in Indiana's victory. He also hurled a 17 yard pass for a touchdown against Michigan. He carried the ball across the Chicago goal twice and put the team in a position to score again by his accurate tosses.

Shows Purdue His Skill.
Indiana's three touchdowns in the annual battle against Purdue were made on Huffman's passes of 26, 31, and 17 yards. Capt-elect Jack Kennedy caught two of the scoring

32 Boys Go in Training for C. Y. O. Finals
Thirty-two boys will open training this afternoon at C. Y. O. center in preparation for the finals of the Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tournament at Chicago Stadium next Wednesday. These lads survived some of the hardest competition in the six year history of the meet, which attracted a starting field of approximately 2,000, to qualify for the sixteen championship encounters in the open division and eight in the novice class.

Such outstanding boxers as Sammy Zacek, flyweight, and Hiner Thomas, middleweight, both of whom won titles last year, tell by the wayside during the month long competition in the preliminary, quarter-final and semifinal rounds in all sections of the town.

One Champion Left.
Frankie Kalnath, bantamweight representative from St. Mary's parish, is the only defending champion remaining.

Still the championship qualifiers form one of the strongest representations in the Chicago archdiocese. Take Johnny Noto for example. In 1934 the flyweight finalist from Presentation parish won the novice Golden Gloves crown and the C. Y. O. open division title. Last year he added a C. Y. O. intercity title to his collection by beating Jimmy Field of New York at Wrigley field.

Star Boxers in List.
Then there's Tony Motisi, St. Margaret Mary lightweight; Joe Howe, Little Flower heavyweight; Cornelius Young, St. Cecilia middleweight, and Jake Lampkins, Holy Family welterweight. Motisi holds the 1935 intercity C. Y. O. novice title. Howe and Young won C. Y. O. novice championships last year, and Jake Lampkins emerged victorious in the finals of the 1934 novice Golden Gloves tournament.

Kalnath's opponent at the Stadium will be Sammy Sferas, Presentation, while Noto will be opposed by Walter Cavelli, Holy Rosary; Modist by William Goldsmith, Corpus Christi; Howe by Clarence Brown, St. Nicholas; Evanston, and Lampkins by Harry Meyers, Presentation.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 26.—(P)—Chicago's Blackhawks won their first game in eight National Hockey league starts tonight, blanketing the champion Detroit Red Wings, 2 to 0, in a tight battle before 10,470. Skating fast, checking hard, and throwing an almost impregnable guard about Goalie Mike Karakas, the Hawks counted in the first period and again in the third to hand the Wings their second defeat of the season.

The Blackhawks went into the lead after 14 minutes on Johnny Gottselig's goal, while Don Deacon, Detroit replacement up from the Pittsburgh Hornets, was in the penalty box for tripping. Herbie Lewis, trying to clear the puck from behind the Detroit nets, was trapped against the boards and the Hawks counted in the first period and again in the third to hand the Wings their second defeat of the season.

The Blackhawks missed one good setup when Marty Burke passed out from behind the Detroit goal to Kendall, whose short drive barely missed the net. The Hawks' Selbert and Larochelle missed shots on another hard drive.

Another Hawk Goal.
The Hawks were content to play a defensive game starting the third period, with seldom more than two forwards following the puck down. The Wings put on all the pressure they could and Howe was injured in a crash. He was helped off the ice.

With Kelly, Sorrell, and Wally Kilrea on the ice, the Wings kept the play in Chicago's zone, but the desperate attack created an opening for the Hawks. Doc Romnes took the puck in mid ice with no one between him and the goal, and skated in to score in 16:54.

The Wings, crippled by loss of Mud Bruneteau and Scotty Bowman, played raggedly, although Deacon and Howard Mackie, recalled from Pittsburgh, gave good individual performances.

BILLY PAPKE AND ESTRANGED WIFE DIE IN SHOOTING
Huntington Beach, Cal., Nov. 26.—(P)—William H. Papke Sr., former middleweight boxing champion, and his estranged wife, Mrs. Edna Eloise Papke, were shot and killed tonight in Mrs. Papke's home on Balboa Island.

A neighbor, who summoned police, said Papke called on his former wife, from whom he was divorced about a month ago, and the shooting followed. Mrs. Papke was shot twice near the heart. Papke's body had three bullet holes through the chest.

Papke, who lived in Altadena, was about 50 years old. His wife's age was given as 46.

The bodies were taken to a funeral parlor in nearby Costa Mesa awaiting a possible inquest.

Papke won the middleweight championship in Los Angeles in 1907 when he defeated Stanley Ketchel, then a contender. Two months later Ketchel won a rematch. When Ketchel was shot and killed in Conway, Mo., in 1910, Papke claimed the title. He lost it to Frank Klaus in Paris in 1913.

HOPPE, DENTON TO OPEN BILLIARD TOURNEY TONIGHT

4 Matches to Be Played Daily for Two Weeks.

BY FRENCH LANE.
Willie Hoppe, the one time boy wizard of the cue, still rated among the world's masters of the ivories, will begin play in the Grand hall-room of the Hotel La Salle tonight in defense of the world's three cushion billiard championship which he has held for almost a year.

Nine rivals will attempt to dethrone Hoppe during the meet, which will continue for two weeks. His opponent in the opening match will be Tiff Denton, famous shot maker of Kansas City. The others in the round robin tournament he will meet before the long struggle ends are Walter Cochran of San Francisco, Otto Reisel of Philadelphia, Jay Bozeman of California, Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., Allen Hall, Art Thurnblad, and Earl Lookabaugh, all of Chicago, and Kinney Matsuyama of Japan.

Four Matches Each Day.
Following tonight's opening match four games will be played each day. Two of these will be played in the afternoon and the other two at night.

All of the players with the exception of Hoppe and Denton did their practicing for the championship play in Chicago. The two that have gained the biggest followings during these practice rounds are Matsuyama and Cochran.

The latter has held the world's three cushion title twice. He won the championship tournament last year. Ninety days later in a challenge match in Chicago with Hoppe the San Francisco player was defeated. Since he arrived from the coast several days ago Cochran's play has been brilliant.

Reports from Kansas City are to the effect that Denton has also been playing in much better style than he did a year ago, while Johnny Layton and Allen Hall have demonstrated they are also at their best.

Layton has won the three cushion title on seven different occasions. He was shooting in bad form a year ago and made a disappointing showing.

Players Running Tourney.
For the first time in many years the tournament is being operated by the players themselves. It formerly was conducted under the auspices of the National Billiard association. The winners and runners-up annually won high salaries jobs with a large billiard concern for giving up exhibitions aside from cash prizes.

They are playing for the gate receipts in the present tournament and whatever they can make out of the championship after it has been won. Some prize money aside from the gate receipts has been hung up so it is expected that the winner's share will be somewhere in the neighborhood of $7,500.

ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR U. S. TABLE TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Plans were announced yesterday for the sixth annual national inter-city table tennis tournament for the championship of the United States to be held at the Lake Shore Athletic club, 850 Lake Shore drive, on Jan. 1, 2 and 3. The tournament was made by Douglas Kittermaster, chairman of the tournament committee.

Tryouts will be held among the ten best American women at the same time for the United States Corbillon cup team for international competition at Baden, Austria, in February, 1937. The United States men's team to compete for the international Swaythling cup at Baden also will be picked during the Lake Shore Athletic club tournament.

TRUTT, INDIANA, WINS C. Y. O. CROSS COUNTRY TITLE

Melvin Trutt, an Indiana university sophomore, won the second annual C. Y. O. and Central A. U. cross-country championship 5,000 meter run yesterday morning at Jackson park. Trutt, who lives in Hammond, ran the course in 14 minutes and 57.1 seconds.

Finishing about fifty yards behind came Jimmy Bliss, Chicago park district representative, and Dick Gleason, Lane Tech student, who finished second and third respectively. Fourth place went to Jessie Martinez of Bensenville.

The team trophy was won by the Chicago park district. Members of the winning team were Jimmy Bliss, Walter Bergman, Bill Mitchell, Pat Flaherty, and Herman Funk. Notre Dame, which won the title last year, did not compete.

Trutt will go to New Jersey next week to compete in the national cross-country run.

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Bradley college won a share of third place in the Little Nineteen by defeating James Millikin 14 to 0 today in the last conference game of the season. It was the sixth victory in eight league starts and gave Bradley a percentage of .750, the same as that of North Central.

Millikin dropped into a tie with Charleston Teachers for fourteenth position, each with two triumphs and four losses.

Deer Hunting Season in Minnesota Costs 8 Lives

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Minnesota's deer hunting season brought death to eight persons, four victims of accidental shootings and four succumbing to heart attacks, a survey disclosed today. In addition 20 hunters sustained superficial to critical bullet wounds in the 10 day period that ended Wednesday. Three victims of accidental shootings were mistaken for deer and one, a 14 year old boy, was believed killed by a stray rifle bullet.

The Olympics, who meet the Schwabens next Sunday in the Tribune Class A tournament, had little trouble winning from the Hinokah in the first round of the national amateur cup, 11 goals to 0.

Peoria Soccer All-Stars Tie Chicago, 1 to 1

The Peoria All-Stars picked from the Birks Soccer league held the International League All-Stars of Chicago to a draw yesterday at 4600 West Fullerton avenue in a return inter-city match, 1 to 1. Both teams started pressing at the kickoff, Peoria having the edge, but Baer saved several good tries. The first goal came after 40 minutes. Mattson, tricking Casper to beat Bracci to the net. Peoria tied the score three minutes later. J. McFarlane, after a long run down the left side, shot high into the net. The half finished all even.

Resuming with a strong wind behind them, the Chicagoans took the offensive. Only the play of Fleming, Coutts, and Bracci kept the score down. The Chicagoans threw away a chance to take the lead when Kramer missed a penalty for Fleming handling the ball. His shot went straight to the goal keeper.

Lineup:

CHICAGO: 11. ALL-STAR 11. P. Baer, G. Schacht, E. Adair, H. Jensen, H. Preter, H. Rathner, V. Abell, S. Mattson, L. Hall, P. Kramer, P. Brinkman, J. McFarlane, Sub: Chicago—G. Overland and J. Johannson. Peoria—P. Plunkett and A. Young. Goals—Mattson and J. McFarlane. Referee: Jack Johnston, Chicago.

The referees defeated the Soccer officials in the opening match, 2 to 0, the goals coming from Sparky Fralick and Johnny Nugent.

The Olympics, who meet the Schwabens next Sunday in the Tribune Class A tournament, had little trouble winning from the Hinokah in the first round of the national amateur cup, 11 goals to 0.

See Long Rule for Minnesota and Ohio State

"Rather it represents a different standard."

New Departure in Education.

To that end Minnesota has instituted the General college which it calls a "new departure in education" and which "calls primarily for a two year rounded course leading to the degree of associate in arts." In plain words, this course is for students who cannot carry the work in other colleges, or do not wish to.

This innovation forced the Western conference to check up on the athletes enrolled and definitely decide that only those athletes whose entrance requirements would permit them to enroll in another college of the university could compete and then only for one year.

The General college, however, is more an innovation now than the colleges of physical education were 15 years ago.

Minnesota's requirements for the degree of bachelor of arts are as high as any university. So are the requirements at Ohio State, although, holders of diplomas from first grade high schools in the state must be admitted. They will be admitted [and this also is true of other Big Ten schools] even if deficient in mathematics with the condition that this deficiency be made up.

Jobs Important Factor.

Minnesota and Ohio State also have advantage in the number of jobs for students and athletes. The lack of jobs at Iowa City, Lafayette, and Bloomington handicaps legitimate efforts to assist athletes. In the depression years part time jobs have been difficult to find in Chicago. Perhaps these facts account for the large number of athletes legitimately employed by Purdue and Chicago and the number of loans made to athletes by Northwestern.

Universities which have successful teams attract outstanding high school athletes. The desire to play on a winning team, to play under a nationally known coach, is natural. High school stars will not often be willing to bury themselves where they believe defeat will be their portion more times than victory.

What Influences Athletes. Some high school athletes are influenced in selection of their universities by their high school coaches. Others may be influenced by former coaches who now are assistants at major universities. This is in contrast to the practice of recruiting wherever there is a chance to recruit, a practice that in Western conference never will become universal.

No university in the Big Ten may start practice before Sept. 10. Freshmen cannot be looked over in advance of the start of the school year.

There is no intercollegiate competition of any kind for freshmen and there's always the possibility that the best prospects may fail to complete their first year's work and be ineligible for the varsity. The percentage of ineligibles, and most schools refrain from giving this pub-

Evidence of Honesty.

Bettbridge was declared ineligible at Ohio State this fall. Swisher and Flato were prominent ineligibles at Northwestern. That faculties take such action is evidence of honest administration. That it is accepted almost without comment by the general public is tribute to the principle that a boy attends college for an education.

More than 3,000 athletes were enrolled in the Western conference last year. Their employment at legitimate jobs by the ten universities paid them $48,000. And it should be noted, perhaps, that Minnesota was tenth in the list. Two hundred thirty-seven athletes received loans from the university loan committees under the same conditions as loans were granted to other students. These funds are administered by the universities, not by the football coach, or the athletic department.

The Big Ten continues to keep control of athletics. There are violations. All laws are broken. But violations are punished and constant investigations are made. This, unfortunately, is not true of all universities or all associations in control of college football. Recruiting and subsidizing will be discussed tomorrow.

Cleveland Rams Defeat Rochester Tigers, 7 to 6

ROSS FAVORED TO WHIP JANNAZZO AND KEEP TITLE

Scheduled to Fight 15 Rounds Tonight.

New York, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Chicago's Barney Ross is a 3 to 1 favorite to successfully defend his world's welterweight crown against Izzy Jannazzo, New York east sider, in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The boys are scheduled over the 15 round championship route with the winner pledged to defend the crown against Cesarino Garcia, hard hitting west coast welterweight, within 60 days.

Unless there is a flood of Jannazzo money poured into the Broadway betting centers between now and post time, Ross may climb through the ropes at a price of 4 or even 5 to 1. About all the Jannazzo money in evidence is wagered on Ross falling to score a knockout within six rounds.

Good Left Jabber.

On paper it promises to be an easy victory for Barney, but smart fight men who saw Jannazzo fight Garcia to a furious 15 round draw a few weeks ago are not at all sure that Ross is going to have a walkaway. Jannazzo, they point out, will pour a broadside of left hand jabs into the champion and unless Barney has been schooled against this particular style of attack, he may find the going a lot rougher than his admirers anticipate.

Against Garcia, one of the hardest hitters among the welterweights, Jannazzo was a fighter who simply wouldn't be beaten. He took enough punishment to stop the average fellow, but he was right there at the finish, jabbing away with his left hand and doing a pretty fair job of blocking Garcia's punches.

Ross, who is defending the title for the first time since he whipped Jimmy McLarnin in May, 1935, is punching well and seems to be as clever on his feet as ever. Around his camp at Fenelale his aids are betting on a knockout.

Venturi Meets Graham.

Jannazzo isn't a dangerous hitter, but he is a troublemaker. He has the heart of a lion and is always willing to take three punches for an opportunity to land one. He is a hard man to fight and there lies his chance of success.

Enrico Venturi, Italian lightweight, will meet the veteran Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., in the eight round semi-final. Bushy is in the midst of a comeback campaign. Another eight rounder will see Baby Casanova, holder of three Mexican titles, facing Irish Eddie Brink of Scranton. Casanova is a substitute for Aldo Spodi, lightweight champion of Italy, who is ill.

Army Visions Victory; Off to Battle Navy

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Army's football team trained this afternoon for Overbrook, Pa., where it will remain until a few hours before its annual game with Navy Saturday in Philadelphia's municipal stadium.

The entire corps of cadets and the military academy band were out in force to see the squad off. There was a lot of noise and much cheering, but there also was a note of seriousness because the players and the cadets have a high regard for the formidability of the Midshipmen.

The traditional game between the Engineers and Goats was played before a large crowd. This game, played annually just before the departure of the squad for the scene of the Navy game, is considered an omen of victory if the Goats beat the Engineers. The Goats won, 12 to 9.

NAVY SQUAD LEAVES.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 26.—(AP)—The Navy squad enroute for Philadelphia and the thirty-seventh clash with Army today after a final workout on the turf of Thompson stadium.

The regulations which have barred the Navy preparation to all but coaches since the Harvard game were relaxed sufficiently to allow naval officers, midshipmen, their friends and relatives to watch the practice.

With a friendly group of spectators watching every move, Coach Tom Hamilton put the squad through a warming up workout, extremely light and confined to fundamentals.

THIRD SPONGING CASE BARED AT BOWIE TRACK

Aneroid Is Withdrawn; Piccolo Wins Handicap.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Before 22,000 persons, Maryland's largest crowd of the fall season which watched approximately half a million dollars, C. V. Whitney's Piccolo today won the $3,075 Thanksgiving handicap at Bowie. The result was a stunning surprise to admirers of the Man of War colt, Jean Bart, who went to the post an odds on favorite and brought up third in a field of six.

The early afternoon was once more packed with excitement when word got around in the big crowd that Aneroid had been scratched because a sponge had been found in his nostril after a morning workout. It was the third case of such tampering since last Saturday, all of the attempts a betting coup having been frustrated.

Moon Side First Victim.
Last Saturday a sponge was withdrawn from the nostril of Moon Side in time for him to run and win. The second tampering came to light only with news of the Aneroid sponging for it affected a horse in the same stable.

Trainer Dion Kerr and officials believe that the sponge found in the nose of Aneroid was the same as the one found in the nose of Moon Side. The sponge was found in the nostril of Aneroid and the wrong dogs became confused when the horses were switched in their stalls. They then returned again to attack Aneroid.

Bowie looks like an armed camp for the last two days of the meeting. Armed guards patrol the stable areas, dogs are loose and on chains, and every stable and hand is on the alert.

Jean Barth Favorite.
With Aneroid out of the big race everyone supposed that it was a case walk for Jean Barth. But this morning fellow burdened with top weight of 122 pounds, faltered after making a strong move at the top of the stretch. All the early pace was made by Lemont and he still was in front turning for home. Jean Barth moved up to the outside of him and Piccolo to the outside of Jean Barth and drove on to win. Sandy Bow was half a length behind Piccolo at the end of the mile and a sixteenth. Three lengths back, in third position, Jean Barth crossed the line.

EUROPE CACHES
2 1/4 BILLION IN
U. S. IN 21 MOS.More Foreign Cash in Stock Market.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Reflecting war scares, currency raids and social upheaval in Europe, $2,281,659,000 of capital flowed into the United States for the twenty-one month period ending Sept. 30 of this year, the treasury announced today.

This net inward flow, representing short term banking funds, brokerage balances, and security transactions, was set forth by the treasury in a voluminous record of capital movements between the United States and foreign countries. The figures were amazed from data reported weekly by banks, bankers, brokers, and dealers to the federal reserve banks under regulations issued by the treasury department.

U. S. Moves for Ourb.

The material was released as a move in the administration's attempt to curb the foreign investor in the American market. The attack was launched by President Roosevelt personally two weeks ago when he issued a warning of the disaster that might follow if foreigners started to liquidate their seven billion dollar investments in the United States.

Although the President declared that legislation might be necessary for control of foreign investments, the treasury report on capital movements gave no hint of what the new deal has in mind as a legal weapon.

The pouring of foreign funds into this country for the year and nine months was divided as follows: Short term banking funds (mostly deposits and balances built up in the country), $1,553,072,000; security transactions, $905,429,000; and brokerage balances, $23,258,000.

Some Is Repatriation.

The inward movement of banking funds was partially accounted for by repatriation, although the treasury report did not give the amounts.

While the movement of short term balances into the United States slowed up somewhat for the nine months of this year, according to the report, foreigners became increasingly involved in the American stock market. Short term banking funds moved into the United States in the net amount of $963,547,000 during 1935 and $389,525,000 for the nine months of 1936. On the other hand, the net movement in security transactions for the nine month period was $468,000,000 or more than the entire year of 1935, when this total was $441,829,000.

Banking Funds Movement.

The net inward movement of banking funds into the United States, as divided up by countries or groups of countries by the treasury, for the entire twenty-one month period, was as follows:

United Kingdom	$437,911,000
France	128,504,000
Germany	60,445,000
Italy	26,132,000
Netherlands	61,893,000
Switzerland	136,445,000
Other European Countries	116,683,000
Canada	115,612,000
Latin America	124,669,000
Far East	143,214,000
All other countries (including Africa)	6,314,000

The net foreign purchases of domestic securities during the entire period amounted to $633,253,000. The treasury used the term "domestic securities" to cover securities of the United States government, states, and subdivisions, and of corporations chartered in the United States. "Foreign securities" signified paper issued by foreign governments and corporations.

Purchases of U. S. Securities.
The total foreign purchases of domestic securities during the twenty-one month period amounted to $3,028,779,000, while sales were $2,395,526,000. At the same time foreign purchases of foreign securities in this market were $1,325,682,000 and sales $1,053,506,000, or a net of $272,176,000.

The United Kingdom again led in the purchases of securities, with a net amount of $235,503,000 in this country for the period. Switzerland was second, with net purchases of $146,588,000, and the Netherlands

How the Price of Standard Oil of

During the Last Four YearsU. S. Doubles
Weekly Rate of Borrowing

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Under Secretary Morgenthau's policy of keeping a big supply of ready cash as "insurance" against "times and conditions abroad," the treasury today doubled its weekly borrowing.

With the balance falling below $1,000,000,000 this week for the first time in several months, Secretary Morgenthau called for bids Monday on $100,000,000 of discount bills. This was $50,000,000 more than the treasury's usual weekly borrowing.

The additional money will flow into the working balance which now stands at $987,000,000.

Two Series of Bills.

The bills will be sold in two series, one of 27 1/2 days maturity and one of 104 days maturity. The latter will fall due March 16, and will be retired with March tax revenues.

Several months ago, Secretary Morgenthau said it was "very desirable" to retain $1,000,000,000 in the working balance because of conditions abroad. Although this costs the treasury about $2,000,000 a year in interest rates, he said, it provides "the safest insurance the country can have" should "anything unforeseen occur."

The Treasury Chief's Action in continuing this policy indicated that some new money may be sought in the government's December financing.

Big December Borrowing.

On Dec. 15, the treasury will meet bill and note securities aggregating $1,187,000,000, comprised of $400,000,000 of bills and $358,000,000 of notes maturing on that date plus $429,000,000 of notes due Feb. 15.

Although officials said no decision had been reached on whether new money would be sought, they added that this might be necessary if the working balance is to be retained at $1,000,000,000.

President Roosevelt's revised budget estimates call for $300,000,000 of new borrowing during the remainder of this fiscal year exclusive of new funds which may be needed for relief.

SEARS, ROEBUCK TO VOTE OF SALE
OF STOCK TODAYIncrease in Working Capital Planned.

Stockholders of Sears, Roebuck & Co. are scheduled to meet today for action on the company's proposed financing plans, which include the sale of approximately 625,000 shares of capital stock to present stockholders and employees at not less than $60 a share.

The stock will be offered to provide additional working capital which cannot be accumulated from earnings under the new federal tax law on undistributed profits without payment of heavy taxes. Plans for the sale of stock were announced on Oct. 26, when directors also declared an extra dividend of $1.75 in an effort to avoid the tax.

Another Extra Expected.

It was also indicated that another extra of similar amount will be distributed before the close of the company's fiscal year on Jan. 31, 1937.

Under the new federal tax law on undistributed profits, the authorized capital stock will be increased from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 shares, and shareholders will be allowed to buy one new share for each ten shares now held. The company would sell the shares not subscribed by stockholders to a banking group headed by Goldman, Sachs & Co.

The Parker corporation has declared a special dividend of $1.50 in addition to a payment of 40 cents.

Perfect Circle Votes Extra.

An extra dividend of 25 cents on its common stock has been declared by the Perfect Circle company.

The Northwestern Water and Electric corporation has declared a special dividend of $1 on its common stock.

The Columbia Broadcasting system notified stockholders by mail today that "due to various tax problems, the company's fourth quarter dividend usually taken at the November meeting will be deferred until early in December."

third, with net purchases of $119,850,000.

The treasury also published data on purchases and sales of foreign exchange by banks and bankers. Spot purchases for the period amounted to $11,385,190,000 and forward purchases $5,208,440,000. During the twenty-one months spot sales of exchange were $10,411,967,000 and forward sales $5,122,519,000.

The greatest inflow of capital occurred during the last three months of 1935, when a net amount of $581,360,000 in foreign funds was poured into the United States. The movement corresponded with the outbreak of the Italo-Ethiopian war, the sanctions voted by the league of nations, steaming of British warships into the Mediterranean, and other gestures that threatened a general European conflict.

The few times that capital fled from the United States it followed the trend of the soldiers' bonus and talk of inflation resulting from drastic New Deal legislation.

Outflow After Bonus.

For example, a big movement outward of $42,949,000 in the week ending May 1, 1935, accompanied passage of a highly inflationary bonus bill by the senate, a drop in the world price of silver which the New Deal had been bolstering up with purchases and deliberations in congress on the

B. F. Goodrich.

Investors' Guide: Please send me a report on Goodrich and its preferred stock.—M. J.

Answer: The B. F. Goodrich company is one of the four leading manufacturers of automobile tires and other rubber goods. Its line of non-tire products numbers more than 30,000 articles and includes various mechanical rubber goods for industry, hose, upholstery material, druggists' sundries, and shoes made by Flood Rubber company, a wholly owned subsidiary.

Development of the non-tire bus-drastic banking bill of 1935 cloaking the New Deal with vastly increased powers.

A net outflow of capital to the extent of $16,954,000 occurred for the week ending July 3, 1935, on the heels of President Roosevelt's demand that congress enact new "share the wealth" taxes.

Passage of a bonus bill by the senate led to an outflow of $13,112,000 during the last week in January of this year and increasing talk of inflation along with a weakening of the dollar was deemed responsible for another outflow of $8,477,000 for the week ending Feb. 12.

Loss 19 Millions in Week.

A combination of paying out the 2 billion dollars bonus to the veterans, the dizzy windup of the 74th congress and the two political conventions brought about a flight of $19,270,000 in capital from this country to foreign shores during the last week of this year.

The statistics were collected by the treasury under the President's executive order of Jan. 15, 1934, and the treasury regulation in the following November demanding the data from all persons engaged in international capital transactions who have their principal place of business in the United States. From now on the treasury expects to issue such reports quarterly.

time, where wheat is now in the milk stage and susceptible to frost, boosted the price at Buenos Aires by 1/2 cent.

Liverpool was strong with higher offers on Argentine and Australian wheats believed to be the source of strength of the English market as other trade news was scarce while United States markets remained closed. Advances at Liverpool amounted to 1/4 to 1/2 cents in a steady market, with December closing at $1.20 and March at $1.14.

Other Grains, Except Rye, Firm.

Prices in the coarse grains were generally firm with the exception of rye, where liquidation caused fractional losses.

The Winnipeg Grain exchange announced today that it will change trading hours, effective tomorrow, to conform with those on the Chicago Board of Trade.

A new issue of $27,000,000 of 4% per cent first mortgage bonds is being marketed. $17,571,000 of proceeds to be used for retirement of 6% per cent bonds and the balance for working capital and corporate purposes. Other funded debt consists of $19,798,800 maturing 6s of 1935.

Initial quarterly dividend of $1.25 was paid Sept. 30 on the new preferred. It is rated medium grade. The common is a speculation.
